Minutemen march

The Wilmington Company of Minutemen set off from Wilmington on their annual march to Concord at 2 a.m. Saturday. Eight marchers completed the 17 mile trek commemorating the battle that started the American Revolution 216 years ago. Adj. Sgt. Jim Murray, (long cape, left) was ready to "sleep in" but fellow marchers roused him out of bed for the march. He marched as far as Sweetheart Plastics and then, as did many others, he returned home to bed.

All but one incumbent returned to office

by Arlene Surprenant
Saturday's election in Wilmington saw all but one incumbent returned to office as Town Clerk Patty Ward praised candidates for "one of the nicest elections" in recent memory.

The big upset of the night was the defeat of Shawsheen Tech School Committee member Kevin Sowyrda by Michael Smith, a relative unknown on the local political scene. Smith garnered 1,449 votes to win a three year seat on the school board.

Town meeting has 63 articles

Wilmington residents will have a chance to act on 63 articles at this Saturday's annual town meeting.

The meeting will begin at 1:30 p.m. in the high school gymnasium. The budget portion of the warrant could be delayed until June if residents vote in favor of the town manager's recommendations. Selectmen have already voted unanimously to delay the budget. Town Manager Michael Cairns said it would be wiser to wait until the local aid picture is clearer before acting on the budget.

Selectman Robert Cain turned back hard fought challenges by his three opponents: Tony Capuano (914), Margaret Imbimbo (563) and John Forrest (419). Cain, who received 1,189 votes, admitted "of all the races I was involved with this was the most difficult." And said he will now turn his attention face of budget difficulties.

Former School Committeeman Robert Peterson led the four way race for the Wilmington School Committee with 1,744 votes. He and incumbent Dr. Shirley Callan (1,322 votes), successfully defeated opponents Brad Jackson (1,217 votes) and James Demos (949 votes) to earn seats on the Committee for the next three years. For Peterson, it was a triumphant return to a board he left in the mid 1980s. He said with a wife and three children, he now has "a different perspective" and hopes to bring "a little stability, a little experience" to the board. Dr. Callan had only one comment when asked how she felt Saturday night: "relieved."

Only 127 votes separated the two candidates for the Wilmington Housing Authority. Incumbent Joan Sadowski retained her seat with 1,452 votes and withstood a strong challenge by political newcomer Dorothy Butler, who was supported by the Deming Way Tenants' Association. Sadowski reiterated her vow to "continue working my very best to help the housing needs of our citizens."

In uncontested races, Jim Stewart topped the ballot with 2,087 votes to become town moderator and Charles Gilbert pulled 1,938 votes to earn a five year seat on the Wilmington Redevelopment Authority.

According to Ward, Wilmington had a better than average turnout with 3,138 residents, or 29.4 percent of eligible voters, going the polls.

Bids on auditorium work much lower than expected

by Arlene Surprenant
Bids for the renovation of the Barrows Auditorium came in lower than expected last week leading members of the Permanent Building Committee (PBC) to express cautious optimism that the final piece of the Wilmington High renovation project will soon become a reality.

The auditorium work was placed on hold in 1988 when an asbestos problem developed at the school. Performing Arts Director Lorraine Kalil has been spearheading a fundraising effort this past year to pay for the needed auditorium work. That work includes the installation of 487 new seats; new doors and frames; repairs of exterior stairs and handrails; new handicapped seats; new stage curtains; acoustical panels; new carpeting; and a new dimmer board, lighting, and sound systems. In addition, the auditorium walls will also be painted through the prison program.

PBC members credited a good bidding climate with the fact that 27 general contractors took out plans and 17 contractors actually bid on the project. The low bid of $156,114 was offered by ISS Energy Services Inc. of Boston. The next lowest bid of $156,900 was filed by IJH contracting Inc. from Walpole and the third lowest bid of $159,978 came from F. Riley Construction Co. Con-Rel Inc. of Lexington offered the highest bid of $192,480.

The lowest sub-bid for electrical work was $59,148 filed by a local company, Wilmington Wiring Corporation. Though the lowest sub bidder does not necessarily have to be carried by the general contractor, all contractors listed the local wiring company according to board members. The sub-bid is included in the total general bid.

AT their meeting last Thursday, PBC members discussed the bids, which had been opened that afternoon. They said they were pleased that the figures were grouped so close together and the lowest bids were well under the original $196,500 estimate. They did note, however, they may have to go with the second lowest bid because of contingency requirements placed on the lowest bid by ISS Energy Services Inc. Under state bidding statutes of Massachusetts General Law, a contractor is not allowed to place other specifications on his bid. PBC Chairman Diane Allan said Town Counsel is presently getting a legal opinion on the matter. An award will be made to the successful bidder in mid-May, added Allan. By that time, the PBC will know if they have enough money to go with a complete or partial project.

In case fundraising efforts fall short, the board has prioritized the work and bidders filed bids for deductive alternatives, which could leave out part of the job, if necessary.

Board members all felt it was imperative that voters go along with an article at this Saturday's town meeting to approve the transfer of $136,000 from the boiler and energy projects to the renovation work.

"Those monies really belong there in the first place," noted Allan, adding "I just feel we're giving back to the taxpayers what was originally owned to them."

Allan explained, with $20,000 in

Enthusiastic response to Business Expo '91

Who's turning the recession around — and how?

How do you get more customers for your business?

What can your business neighbors do for you?

Wilmington businesses will have a golden opportunity to promote and exchange information at the Wilmington Business Expo '91 on Tuesday, April 30 at the Ramada Inn, River Road in Andover.

Businesses have responded enthusiastically, with 46 local firms signed up to participate.

The center of attention will be the tasting area, where visitors will be able to sample the best that local restaurants and caterers have to offer.

A large number of door prizes will be awarded with drawings to take place throughout the program. Prizes include $500 cash, a $500 savings bond, a color TV and many other prizes donated by Chamber members.

State Treasurer Joe Malone has indicated that he will attend.

The Expo will run from 2 to 7 p.m. on Tuesday. Admission is free and open to the general public.

The Ramada is located at Exit 45 off Route 93, next to Le Bifteque.

Shriner's Circus in town for ten days

WHS students stage walk-out to protest proposed budget cuts

by Arlene Surprenant
 Over 200 students from all four grades at Wilmington High School staged an orderly walk-out Tuesday to protest proposed budget cuts and teacher layoffs at the school. The students left the building at 12:30 p.m. and streamed across to the town common, where they remained for over an hour to get their message across.

Millie Cavanaugh, a junior, and Susan Sweet, a senior, acted as leaders during the protest, which they said was spontaneous and spread by word of mouth.

"We want to show that kids are concerned about the cuts. We need the people of Wilmington to give us more money," said Sweet, adding that students don't blame the school committee, Supt. William Fay, or Principal Paul Fleming for the cuts or the need to lay off teachers. She appealed to voters to make education a top priority in Wilmington as they deliberate on the FY 1992 budget.

"A good education is the most important thing the people can give to students," Sweet maintained.

"Education seems to be the last thing on anyone's mind," said Stacey Kane, pointing to the decline in scholarship aid and other priorities that seem to take precedence over keeping good teachers in their jobs.

Several students spoke out in favor of certain teachers who have already received pink slips under the Reduction in Force Policy. They said teachers like Mrs. Hayes, from the social studies department, and music instructor Susan Zrakat bring "energy" and the motivation to learn to their classes.

"She (Zrakat) makes the school a better place to be in," noted Jenn Dunnell, adding "People may think it's not a big deal, but we appreciate her."

Others questioned why someone like Guidance Counselor Florence Athanasia, who "best knows how to run the guidance department," is being riffed and why instructors in major subjects areas were cut before gym teachers. Some, like Charlene LaRivee, were incensed with cuts in the foreign language department. She said she took Italian I, but now can't finish her prescribed course in that language.

"That year was basically useless," she said.

Some of the protestors claimed any further reductions would cause SAT and other test scores to drop lower and lead to a mediocre school. Senior Corey Masse said his mom switched him from a private school to Wilmington High when tuition costs escalated, but had few qualms about the change because the local high school had the reputation of a quality school. Now, however, said Masse, the quality of education is dropping "year after year."

Freshman Janee Woods went further and charged that little emphasis is placed on education in America. She questioned how the country will be able to keep pace and compete with such technologically advanced countries as Japan in the future.

"We just want people to listen to us," the frosh concluded.

A majority of those interviewed wanted to remind parents and senior citizens today's students are the future. If the quality of today's educational program suffers, they explained, society will suffer in the long run.

"Sometimes older people criticize us. How are we supposed to know anything if we don't have an opportunity to learn stuff?" asked senior Kelly Amrock.

"We are concerned. We're not just a bunch of rowdy students," explained Laura Pastore.

"We just have to rock the boat a little bit. If we show we're into saving jobs and having a good education they'll look at us and say, wow, these kids are interested in education," added Christine King.

The protestors were equally outspoken when asked where they would find extra funds in a tight budget year. Ideas ranged from introducing energy saving measures in the school system to doing without such things as after school sports, Christmas tree lights on the common, and a refurbished baseball field.

"It would be better to have books and teachers than to have lights," claimed Cavanaugh.

Masse pointed out there is still some waste on the town side of the budget, especially if one sees four town employees planting a tree by a public building.

WHS Principal Paul Fleming said he had met with student leaders earlier in the day and noted their concerns, especially fears that the cuts will have a potential impact on the students' own education and their ability to get into the college of their choice.

"They're serious-minded young people," said Fleming.

Hazardous Waste Day May 11

by Arlene Surprenant
 Wilmington residents seeking to dispose of any unwanted pesticides, solvents, oils, paints, cleaners, and similar household items are urged to participate in the town's Household Hazardous Waste Collection Day on Saturday May 11.

The collection will take place behind the Swain School off Middlesex Avenue between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. A professional waste handler will be on site to collect the waste products and transport them to a safe site.

Town Manager Michael Caira asks residents not to take any trash or recyclables or such items as explosives, latex paint, 55 gallon drums, smoke detectors, or asbestos for disposal.

For further information, residents may contact Wilmington's Department of Public Works at 658-4481 or watch for upcoming announcements.

Happy family

A big day for Tewksbury's Tina Lunceford

Last Wednesday was a big day for 12-year-old Tina (Martorana) Lunceford of Tewksbury. In a brief meeting at the Middlesex Probate Court, she was formally adopted by David and Michelle Lunceford. She has been their foster child for six years.

Tina has plenty of company at the Lunceford's house. First, there's Ariane Chisholm, Michelle's daughter by a previous marriage. Then there are the Brogans, Jennifer, Patrick and Christina, foster children under the care of the Luncesfords.

And then there are the pets — 48 animals. They have everything from a green iguana to a chinchilla. There are also pygmy goats, tarantulas, rabbits, mice, a python, a turtle, and of course, dogs.

Michelle uses the animals in her work as an animal education instructor. She visits various schools with animals, giving students the chance to see and learn about the animals.

Michelle has also been caring for foster children for 14 years.

Tina, who is in the sixth grade at the Heath Brook School, was recently on channel 6 with the chinchilla. Her favorite subject is math, probably from counting animals.

It's YOUR Money

WHO'S SUPPORTING DAD?

It's not unusual in a larger family for all the adult children to chip in to support an aged parent. Each pays what he or she can, and together they make life more comfortable for the oldster. Trouble is, no one person contributes more than 50 percent of Dad's expenses, so no one qualifies to claim a dependency exemption for him.

There is a way around this: IRS Form 2120, a multiple support agreement. Anyone providing 10 percent or more of the family member's upkeep can claim the exemption, as long as the others paying support agree.

The exemption can be claimed by a different member of the group each year. As a practical matter, it's more advantageous to give the exemption to a lower-income contributor than to anyone who runs the risk of having personal exemptions phased out because of too high income.

Selectmen support transfer of funds

by Arlene Surprenant
Wilmington selectmen urged voters Monday to support Article 10 following news that bids for the Barrows Auditorium renovation project came in lower than expected. The apparent low bid, according to Permanent Building Committee Chairman Diane Allen, came in at $156,900. Article 10, if approved by voters at Saturday's town meeting, will allow for the transfer of $136,000 from the high school boiler project to the auditorium work. According to Performing and Fine Arts Director Lorraine Kalil, there is $14,722 in the bank that was raised for the project and other monies have been pledged.

"This indeed may be a once in a lifetime opportunity," said Selectman Mark Haldane, explaining with such a good bidding climate, it would be a "grave mistake" not to transfer the funds and complete the project this year.

"I think it's only appropriate we turn it back," said fellow selectman

Bob Cain. He went on to explain that transferring the funds is a way of giving back to the PBC some of the money the board took from the auditorium project to deal with an asbestos problem at the school.

Kalil also urged voters to favor the article. She told selectman "We've been so close so often in renovating the auditorium; this time we're closer than ever."

Fundraising efforts are still ongoing. Donors who pledge $200 to pay for one of the new auditorium seats will have their names affixed to a special plaque in the auditorium foyer and their names also listed in a souvenir booklet. Others wishing to add their messages and names to the booklet may do so at a cost of either five dollars (for children under 12), $15, $30, $70, or $100. Checks should be made out to the Barrows Auditorium Fund and sent either to the town treasurer at Wilmington Town Hall on Glen Road or to Wilmington High School.

Board members named special employees

by Arlene Surprenant
The Wilmington Board of Selectmen voted unanimously on Monday to designate members of the School Committee as special municipal employees, a status sought by newly elected committee member Robert Peterson.

Peterson told the board the designation would allow him to conduct business as an attorney before local boards while he serves his three year term on the committee. He pointed out, though, that being a special municipal employee would not give him a variance from the state ethics law. Town Counsel Alan Altman offered a legal opinion in a letter stating that the board of selectmen is authorized to make such a designation. In previous years, selectmen chose not to classify committeemen as special employees. Bob Cain said this was probably done because there was no need to declare the school committee town employees.

Chester Bruce said selectmen should not hinder Peterson in any way. He motioned to grant Peterson's request. After noting that they didn't want to keep qualified professionals off town boards, selectmen approved the request.

Sewer needs affect three towns

by Capt. Larz Neilson
The history of events which lead up to the proposal to construct a sewer in east and north Wilmington, in the coming annual town meeting of Wilmington goes back a dozen years or more. It involves the history of water supplies in North Reading.

Trichloroethylene (TCE) is a volatile organic contamination to be found in some water supplies. To discover TCE in a water supply is to discover a source of disaster. In a manner of speaking, TCE is a by-product of machine shop work.

North Reading for many years had been purchasing water from Wilmington while a search in that town was conducted. Finally a supply was found, a couple of hundred yards north of Concord Street, North Reading. That is the same street as Concord Street, North Wilmington, near the Ipswich River.

Al Sylvia, the publisher of the North Reading Transcript, was the person who made the TCE discovery. Al was in the habit of daily checking in his home, the quality of water from the kitchen sink.

Al's work goes to show that the work of newspaper publishers is sometimes of value in this world.

The TCE was traced to the Stickney Well, northerly of Concord Street in North Reading. The source of the TCE was found to be in the General Electric plant, near Fordham Road in Wilmington.

These events were about one dozen years ago.

The GE plant was sold to another company, Ametek. In the purchase and sale agreement GE agreed to pay for a new septic system. The present system also has the potential of damaging the Reading water supply, down stream and on the opposite side of the Ipswich River.

The Mass. Department of Environmental Protection ordered a few months ago that GE construct a new sewer system for Ametek. That construction must start within a year. The estimated cost is $1.25 million.

The Wilmington Water & Sewer Commissioners do have problems. Timing is critical.

If a second set of tracks is installed on the Haverhill division of the railroad costs will increase.

If Lowell Street is rebuilt, as well might occur, it cannot be dug up again for five years.

The commissioners are hoping to raise enough money to enable them to start with the sewer now. How many additional pledges have been made is not known, but a proposed nursing home on West Street has pledged $150,000. That sum would enable the owners to avoid having to construct a septic system.

GE has agreed to pay Wilmington $1 million, with a time limit of about a year, if the sewer is constructed.

GE has agreed to pay Reading $1 million.

And GE, last week agreed to pay North Reading $3.5 million for the loss of the Stickney well.

Checking results

School Committee chair Dr. Shirley Callan (left) checks numbers at the polls on Saturday night with fellow committee member Peggy Kane. Mrs. Callan was re-elected, placing second in a field of four candidates.

pledges and actual funds raised by Miss Kalil and the transfer approved, the board would be close to its goal. Other fundraising activities, including a ham and bean supper May 18 followed by a concert of 18th Century music, could raise another $10,000 or so, according to Kalil, and be used as contingency funds once the goal is reached.

Allan urged residents and businesses who made pledges to send in their money as soon as possible since a decision has to be made by May 18 to go with a complete or partial project. Anyone wishing to make a contribution to the project is also encouraged to send in donations to the town hall or high school soon.

The Caffeine Question

• Most Americans probably consume some caffeine every day as a natural, or added, ingredient in foods, drinks or medications.

• Caffeine is a stimulant that speeds up the heart, dilates some, and constricts other, blood vessels and increases urination.

• The symptoms of withdrawal are sluggishness, throbbing headache and a mild depression.

• Caffeine consumed by pregnant women passes through the placenta to the unborn child. It also passes into the milk of nursing mothers.

• In recent years the Food and Drug Administration has said that earlier reports linking caffeine with birth defects are unfounded; there is no evidence that caffeine has ever caused birth defects in humans. Nevertheless, many pregnant women and nursing mothers have opted to avoid caffeine.

• Caffeine has not been shown to increase the risk of heart disease. But many doctors advise patients with irregular heartbeats or high blood pressure to be wary of using it.

• Studies have also failed to show any relationship between caffeine consumption and reproductive function, pancreatic cancer or benign breast disease.

• Caffeine affects people differently. If consumption of caffeinated foods or beverages makes you jittery, nervous or causes insomnia, cut them out of your diet. If medications have these effects on you, discuss this with your doctor or pharmacist.

Industries raise $23K for traffic signals

by Arlene Surprenant
Private contributions totaling $23,407 were turned over to Wilmington administrators April 4 to help pay the engineering design cost for signalization of the Andover Street/Rt. 125 intersection.

Local resident Peter Breen, who spearheaded the fundraising drive among area industries, noted in his letter to Town Manager Michael Cairra that the monies are to be kept in an interest bearing account and considered a gift under town regulations.

The intersection in question has been the site of several accidents and is considered dangerous by many citizens who commute along Rt. 125. The engineering cost of new signals is $32,000. According to Cairra, the balance needed has already been set aside by the town. Construction costs for the project will be borne by the State Department of Public Works through a federal program.

In an April 11 letter acknowledging receipt of the funds, Cairra told Breen "We are especially grateful for your willingness to persevere despite a myriad of bureaucratic and economic difficulties. The entire town will benefit because of your leadership."

Selectmen echoed Cairra's words at their meeting Monday and praised Breen for following through on his goal.

Those companies contributing money to the signalization project are Marshall Industries, Crocker P.J.A. Realty Trust, Smith Centoni, MacGregor and Meucci, Monks-Winnell Tool, Spinelli, Unifirst Corporation, Heartquest and Drew, Clapp, Crowley and King, Schely, Murray, Melander, McCarthy, Stafford, Gaudion, Sylvester and DiVito, Kalikow, Ballou and Offtech Inc.

Correction

A story in last week's Town Crier incorrectly reported that a variance had been granted to Mark Lopez on Concord Street. The appeal was withdrawn without prejudice by Attorney Robert Peterson.

Observations on Saturday's town meeting

by Larz F. Neilson

Saturday is town meeting day in Wilmington. This year's warrant has an abundance of articles, largely due to the lifting of a five-year moratorium on the sale of town-owned land. Of the 63 articles on the warrant, 20 are for the sale of land.

Also on the warrant, though, is an article which will set regulations under which the land may be sold. The article replaces previous procedure under Chapter 3 Section 16 of the town by-laws with a procedure in conformance with Mass. General Laws Chapter 30B, known as the Uniform Procurement Act.

Many of the articles submitted for the warrant seek to sell the land in question to a particular person. Because that is how the articles were submitted, that is how they were published. On the floor of town meeting, however, each will have to be amended, deleting the name of the person and replacing it with "at auction".

In two instances, two articles have been submitted for sale of one piece of land to two different individuals. But that won't be a problem. It will simply go to the highest bidder.

If Article 23 is approved, the money from the sale of these parcels will go into a stabilization fund to have an amount of money to be used only for capital purchases, such as vehicles, equipment or property of a lasting nature. No money in the fund could be used for salaries or other current expenses.

Other articles of note: Article 39 would allow temporary political signs prior to elections, although it allows only one sign. Hopefully this will put an end to the idiotic practice of placing signs on junk cars. As far as this editor is concerned, political signs are part of the process. If nothing else, they leave no doubt that there will be an election. We'd always said that what this town needed was a candidate bold enough to launch a First Amendment challenge the prohibition of signs. Article 39 is a step in the right direction.

Article 16 is a proposal to require a license for canvassers or solicitors going door-to-door or establishing a location for taking orders for future delivery. In the recent past the town has been invaded by door-to-door magazine salesmen, imported from out-of-state by a sales firm. In once instance, a woman in Woburn was murdered by one of these solicitors.

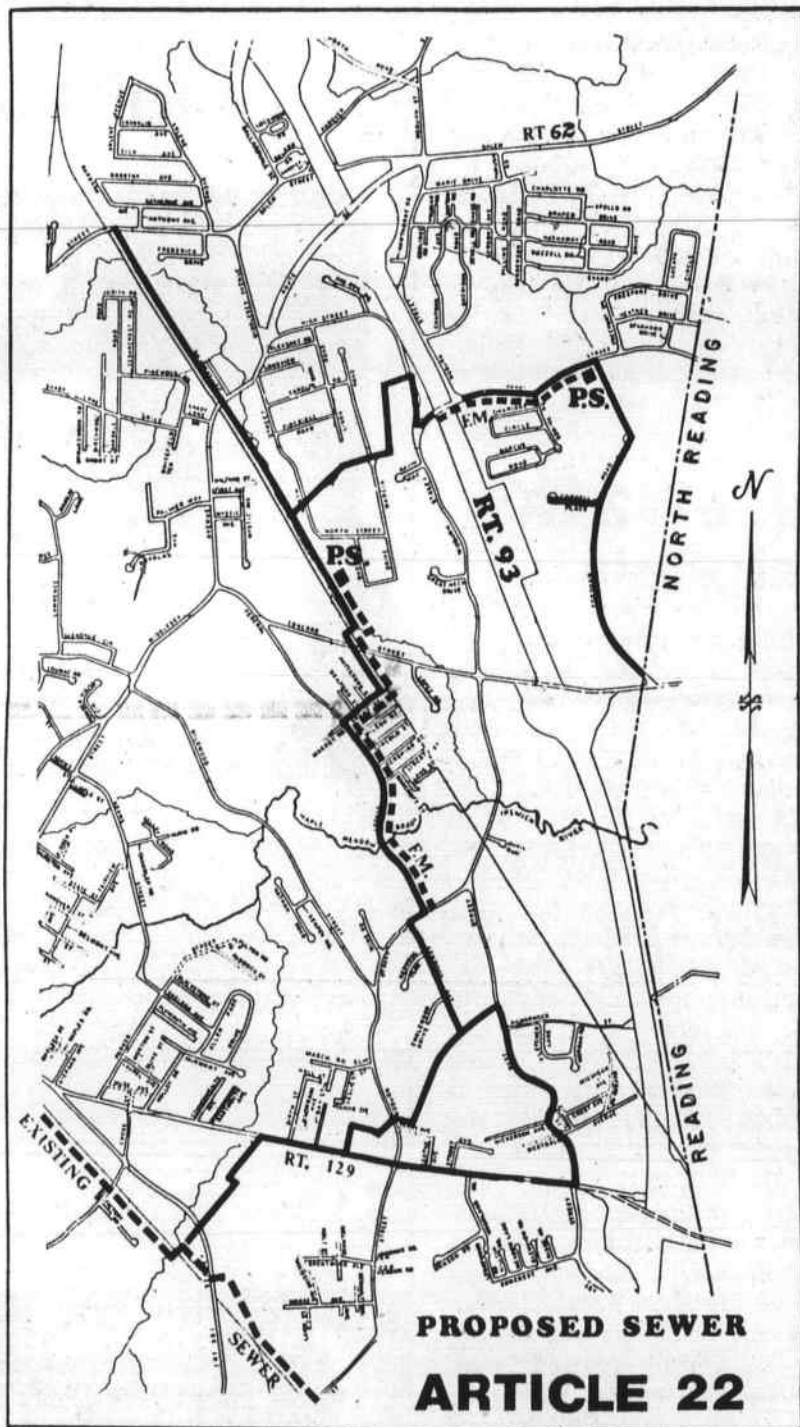

Persons reporting emergencies would only have to dial 911 if Article 24 is accepted. Having a simplified, standardized emergency number makes sense, as can be attested by anyone who has tried to remember the fire or police number in a panic.

Television has changed the dynamics of the town meeting. Residents can now watch the meeting live on cable channel 30 or 52. Watching the meeting while lounging in the living room is certainly a temptation, especially compared to the torture of sitting in one of those horrid black folding chairs the town rents from the Marquis-de-Sade Chair Company.

Televised meetings have created a new method of voting. Wait until your particular article comes up, and then pray you don't get a speeding ticket trying to get there before the vote is taken.

The town meeting is an annual ritual unique to New England towns, and is one of the most basic forms of democracy anywhere on Earth. Voters at the meeting will make the decisions that will impact our lives. It is an exercise that deserves your participation.

Sewers: now or never?

by Capt Larz Neilson

Article 22 in the warrant for the annual town meeting of Wilmington calls for the construction of a sewer from near the North Reading line, along Fordham Road and Park Street to the North Wilmington railroad track and then southerly to eventually join with the existing sewer in the Wilmington railroad track, near Main Street. The cost is estimated at from $5.5 million to 6.5 million.

There are several features about the proposal which should be realized by the town meeting voters.

A vote at this time will probably ensure the construction of the sewer. A vote next year, or two years from now cannot be certain to ensure the construction.

The railroad track in North Wilmington is, at this time, has a single set of rails. For well over 100 years that track was a part of the Boston & Maine Railroad.

Today that railroad line is a part of the MBTA. As a result of the changes in ownership there have also been changes in operational rules.

For several years the story has been that the MBTA is planning to double the tracks. In the event that such a thing should come to pass the right-of-way would probably no longer be accessible to the town for the purpose of constructing a sewer. The town would have to modify its plans in one way or another, certainly at increased cost.

Another critical factor in the timing of the sewer construction is the $1 million available from GE. Although the former GE plant is now owned by Ametek, GE must pay for a new sewage disposal system, under terms of the sale agreement. It would cost about $1.25 million to build a septic system. Paying the town $1 million toward the cost of a sewer is a cheaper and better option for GE. But if the town cannot provide that sewer soon, then GE must build a septic system, and the town gets no money towards its sewer.

To vote no at this time could mean that vast areas in North and East Wilmington would not have any sewer service for a period of years.

That's the real crux of the coming Town Meeting vote on Article 22.

frankly speaking

by Kevin John Sowyrda

How's about a new peace treaty at the Roman House, headquarters of the Wilmington School Department? The timing is perfect. The 1991 municipal election season is history and tradition would call for unity, however disingenuous. Perhaps more demanding of a new spirit of cooperation is a whopping local deficit staring 2,828 students right in the face.

But unlike most unity calls this one does not affect parties on two sides of the fence. Instead, as an array of bizarre incidents show, it's necessitated by the actions of a school committee clique which has personally harassed Superintendent Bill Fay relentlessly.

Fay, to his credit, has been the persistent diplomat. He joined the public school system when the committee's popularity and clout were at an all-time low following the controversy surrounding the departure of former superintendent Bob Horan.

Horan had left his post with a severance check of over $60,000, courtesy of an obscure contract clause providing him with sick-time, vacation-time "buy-back".

Fay has established a line of communications with Town Hall which did not previously exist. Like many towns, the Wilmington School Department and the remaining chunks of municipal government have always been at odds, as if each is an independent state called "Town Side" and "School Side." Fay has worked to make it one local government called "Our Side".

And what has been his reward? Ask Shirley Callan. Then ask Peggy Kane. Then, give Andrea Paglia a quick ring. Pardon any sexist undertones but the three female members of the school committee would have been a perfect argument against women's suffrage in the early part of this century.

Let's take a look at the more recent actions of the clique. Bill Fay, like his colleagues elsewhere, is reviewed by his school committee for job performance. But forget any substance here. Peggy Kane's main objection of her chief administrator, put in writing for anyone to see, is that Fay doesn't wear formal suits but instead prefers blazers with matching (at least I think they match) dress pants.

Are you with the program, Peggy? President Bush has declared a public education emergency and your biggest concern is that Mr. Fay pick up a Jordan's charge account.

The situation has pretty much been reduced to a personality issue. There's nothing of particular substance that they can really object to, but instead the clique hammers Fay as an individual.

Fay had recently objected to the behavior of finance committee member Walter Kaminski, who has been accused of blustery tirades at school committee budget hearings. Fay had communicated his dissatisfaction with Kaminski to Fincom Chairman Paul Palizollo. Subsequently, the three distaff members of the committee attempted to discipline Fay instead of leaping to his defense as any other committee would have done under the circumstances.

Failing to gain the support of the four other committee members to take formal action against Fay, Andrea "I abstain" Paglia took it upon herself, in another of her bizarre moves, to send executive session information regarding the Fay - Kaminski incident to the State Ethics Commission.

The State Ethics Commission?

"Dear Andrea: That one is going to go about as far as the investigation of Speaker Charlie Flaherty's Celtics tickets."

For the record, it should be noted that no one has brought up the fact that Mrs. Paglia has violated basic school committee ethics and policies by releasing executive session minutes prior to their being approved. According to the district attorney's office such a move is also a violation of state law. (It could not be determined what statutes cover bizarre behavior.)

If Fay had done the same there would have been a public castration ceremony at the Baldwin Apple Monument.

Attended by three.

Now let's talk vacation. I like Bill Fay more for his wife than himself. Frances is a charming lady, and one of the few people from Wilmington who likes me.

Anyway, Bill has this great trip to Disney planned for the wife and kids.

Andrea, Peggy, and Shirley have other plans.

At the last minute, Mrs. Designer Clothing Kane decides Bill shouldn't leave town because town meeting is just around the corner and negotiations with the teachers' union regarding pay cuts are ongoing.

Are you laughing yet?

While, get ready for this. Peggy's clique buddy Dr. Callan had banned Bill from the same negotiation meetings. So, what's the harm in a trip to Disney World to see Mickey Mouse, Donald Duck, and Pluto, all of whom probably made Bill feel like he was right back at work.

And you wonder why Bob Surran left the school committee? Bob, you're the smartest man in Wilmington, next to Bob Horan.

Any more reasons for repeal of the Nineteenth Amendment? How about day care? When one of the best deals in town came to this committee for a privately funded day care program, recommended by the superintendent, the clique shot it down. Remember that when you pay your day care bill this month.

Shirley's a lucky pol. The only reason she won is because her opponents weren't tough enough. Five weeks of ads saying simply, "I support affordable day care, Shirley won't" would have cost the incumbent her seat on the clique.

Watch out angels, there's a new gun in town and his name is Attorney Bob Peterson. He's fresh from his sabbatical in the private sector, born again with strange concepts to government like common sense, professionalism and teamwork.

He'll put this charge before you. How about letting a capable superintendent named Bill Fay do his job, while putting personalities aside and making the interests of the 2,828 students first and foremost?

Juniors to babysit at town meeting

The League of Women Voters of Wilmington has reported that the High School junior class is planning to provide babysitting services for the annual town meeting Saturday, April 27. Families will be asked for a donation for this service which will be available from 1:30 p.m. to the supper break.

In keeping with its purpose to promote the informed and active participation of citizens in government, the League encourages voters to take advantage of this opportunity to participate in decisions which will affect the future of the town. Matters to be voted on include budget appropriations for next year as well as proposed are zoning articles, sale of town owned land, town bylaw changes relating to political signs and licensing of solicitors and extension of sewer lines.

The League of Women Voters is enthusiastically supporting this fundraising activity which will enable parents of young children to attend town meeting as well as help the junior class raise money to cover yearbook and prom expenses.

The April 28, 1966 edition of the Town Crier of Wilmington noted that:

Joint action a year earlier by the Reading and Wakefield Municipal Light Departments resulted in a reduction of the wholesale electric power rate paid by the two municipal utilities to their supplier, Boston Edison.

Kenneth Gaw, Reading Municipal Light Manager estimated that the saving to the Reading system would be about $100,000; Wakefield, $60,000. Both departments planned to pass the savings on to their customers as soon as possible.

Among those appointed to serve on the Memorial Day Committee were Madeline Shine, Madeline Higginbotham, Paul Farrell, Marguerite Baker, Angus MacFeeley and Katherine Emery.

William J. Fay of Brand Avenue, a junior at Salem State College, was to be inducted in the Delta Tau Kappa Chapter of Salem State College. "Delta Tau Kappa is the International Social Science Honor Society."

A large three bedroom home was offered for rent, for $115 per month, unheated.

Health board moves against McDonough Construction

Lack of response to an order to clean up construction debris on Ainsworth Road angered health officials Monday and led them to take immediate action against the offender.

Wilmington health board members instructed their director, Greg Erickson, to refile for a show cause hearing in court if the owner of C.P. McDonough Construction Company fails to clean up the debris by Thursday. Members pointed out the illegal dumping violation has continued long enough.

"He's jerking our chain; his time is up," said Chairman Jim Ficociello, adding owner Coleman McDonough has $1200 worth of fines on the books and the board shouldn't stand still for any more delay.

The board will seek the maximum fine of $500 a day through the court. Members said if McDonough fails to show in court, the state can pick him up and force him to attend.

Dear Larz:

Another election season has ended in Wilmington with most incumbents battered but not beaten. Selectman Bob Cain withstood a strong challenge from a political neophyte better known for his fence and trucks than his political savvy. Tony Capuano garnered almost as many votes as Margaret Imbimbo and John Forrest combined. Seeing that Cain received less than 40 percent (40%) of the vote, Capuano can only wonder what might have been if the Miceli-backed Maggie and perennial fodder, Forrest, had stayed out of the race.

On the other hand, Cain must feel vindication. The voters have now joined the Grand Jury in supporting his version of the alteration with former selectman Michael McCoy. After throwing the Indicted-One out of office last year, the electorate decided to return Cain for a fifth term, albeit not without a struggle. WCTV must have been pulling for Tony who would have boosted those Monday night ratings.

Bob Peterson matched expectations by topping the School Committee ticket. No longer the Committee's counsel, now you can tell us what you really think, Bob. Shirley Callan survived a scare by former school and finance committee member, Brad Jackson. Dr. Callan's 100 vote cushion can hardly be considered a mandate for her leadership. Jackson, Callan and Peterson were all quality candidates deserving of election. Next year, with the Caira, DeMarco and Paglia seats all available, Jackson should be considered an early favorite.

Joan Sadowski's narrow victory over unknown Dorothy Butler was her second close call in as many years and a major defeat for Housing Authority Chairman, Michael Donovan, whose hopes of ousting Executive Director, Ella Belmore and keeping his chairmanship were both vanquished with Butler on Saturday.

The politically ambitious and unemployed chairman of the Democratic Town Committee is rumored to have future sights on the Board of Selectmen or State Legislature. With two (2) Republicans and Jim Miceli now representing Wilmington, the former aide to Augie Grace is finding his political fortunes now going the way of his job search.

In the most bizarre development of the day, the obscure Shawheen Tech School Committee seat was won by the even more obscure Michael Smith over Kevin Sowyrda. Sowyrda's uncontested record of achievement as matched only by his acquisition of political enemies, most of whom came out on Saturday to vote against him.

Mike McCoy pulled out of the selectman's race after his indictment, but he must have received a vicarious thrill in funding the campaign that defeated his long-time nemesis. Sowyrda now knows how Thomas Larkin felt after he was dumped by Donna Lambert in the Registrar of Probate race last fall.

As for Smith, he is an embarrassment to the town. Absent from all public forums, unavailable to the press and void of a single idea to better the Tech, the mysterious Smith failed to show up at Town Hall to be sworn in Saturday night. The question is whether Wilmington will be better served by Smith surfacing at the Tech or having him remain the Harvey of Wilmington politics.

For Sowyrda, the message is that when you write a political column, people remember what you did to them, not what you did for them.

And can you explain the 43 people who "blanked" the Selectman's race? Geniuses all, I'm sure, they must have felt that Cain, Capuano, Imbimbo and Forrest didn't offer enough diversity to the voters.

The winners should be congratulated. Those who ran but fell short of victory deserve kudos as well. The losers on Saturday were the 70 percent of votes who stayed home.

Now if you want excitement in local government in the coming year these are the people who can bring excitement to the chairmanship of their board or committee:

Selectman - Chester Bruce; School Committee - Andrea Paglia; Housing Authority - Dan Gillis; Redevelopment Authority - Charles Gilbert.

Local government - there's nothing like it!

Cordially,
Thomas Sanderson

Dear Larz:

Referring to the April 17 Tewksbury edition I couldn't help but notice the small article entitled "Carciofi to stay" under the Master Zoning Plan Map.

What I'm hoping you would explain to me is why the Tewksbury selectmen chose to retain Louis Carciofi in a position of importance when the man was voted out of office by an overwhelming number.

I would think the Tewksbury Selectmen have the ability to realize that the people of Tewksbury just don't want him.

Sincerely,
Kevin Comtois

Dear Larz:

Another complaint about the mistreatment of the Wilmington motorist.

In traveling east on Middlesex Avenue you come to a red light at Concord Street (It's always red when I get there).

When the light finally turns green allowing cars to proceed straight ahead, a red arrow, pointing to the right onto Concord Street, remains on.

Question - why can't I make a right turn onto Concord Street when a green light allows traffic to proceed straight ahead?

Thanks for the chance,
George F. Quinn

P.S. It must be another engineering marvel!

Editor's reply: Probably the best reason why you can't take a right turn from Middlesex onto Concord Street is that those two roads do not intersect. The lights you are referring to are at the intersection of Middlesex and Federal (note that the hill is referred to as Federal Hill). Concord Street does not actually begin until the fork in the road 125 yards to the east.

The red arrow on right turn is for pedestrians wanting to cross Federal Street. Apparently it's on an automatic cycle to accommodate the pedestrians who aren't there when you happen to be. —lfn

and other senior citizens:

Article #13 on the Wilmington Town Warrant proposes to substitute a five person Commission on Elder Affairs, appointed by the town manager, for the present 11 member Council on Aging appointed by the board of selectmen. Serious disinformation is being spread that funds allocated to the town through Minuteman Home Health Care are endangered, which is not true - at least not through this proposed reorganization. The wildest speculations, motivated by opposition to the proposed changes to the status quo seek to prevent rational discussion of the proposed changes and bring about a total defeat of the article.

The changes are needed because the present COA is not working together well. A dissident group on the council seeks to undermine the authority and dominate the actions of the coordinator, instead of discovering the needs and representing the interests of all the senior citizens of this town.

Put simply, this will resolve a power struggle on the COA in favor of all the seniors, and is not a struggle between the selectmen and the town manager. Our Town Charter gives the town manager power to hire, promote and fire, and G.L. Chapter 40 confirms the town manager's power to appoint.

At a special meeting of the COA called to discuss what should be the council's reaction to the Article #13 proposal - after general discussion of the article eight of 10 present members voted unanimously to support a change from five to seven members of the proposed commission on a motion by C. Gilbert. It was also moved by Charles Gilbert to support appointment by the board of selectmen - this passed five to two (two absent, one vacancy, and chair not voting). Last moved, by Grace Kirkland that to continue to support of seniors and coordinator, that at least three if new commission has five, and four if new commission has seven members of the present council be appointed to the new commission. Unanimous!

I believe that the best interests of all the seniors of this town will be well served by approving Article #13 with but one change - increasing the number of commissioners from five to seven, and strongly support Article #13 with that one change. I do remind all seniors especially that a NO vote on this question will only continue the bickering and disruptive tactics that have highlighted many of our recent meetings, preventing substantive progress in meeting our senior's needs.

Sincerely,
Henry C. Latta, Chairman
Council on Aging

Dear Larz:

In a brochure, issued by the Department of Elderly Affairs, it says "(Councils on Aging) are considered part of the local government." In the Wilmington telephone book, under Town Departments, you will find a listing under Town Departments. The listing reads, Department of Elderly Affairs and gives a telephone number and person to call.

Why do we need Article 13?

The only thing Article 13 will accomplish is to take the appointive powers to the COA, out of the control of the board of selectmen and place appointments under the control of one person - the town manager!

Our present town manager is a talented man, but in the past 16 years we have had three town managers. Who knows what the next town manager's attitude toward the elderly will be? This Article puts too much power in the hands of one person.

After talking to persons in high positions, at the Mass. Elderly Affairs Office, I am concerned that some of the grants and monies that come in to the COA from the state could be in jeopardy.

Larz, I have been associated with the Wilmington COA for 16 years. In those years, the present COA, under the present bylaw has progressed from a store front organization to a multi-thousand renovated, refurbished building which cost the taxpayers only $50,000. A lot of the credit is due to the careful selection of COA appointees by the board of selectmen, but most of the credit must go to participating seniors and the COA's town paid supervisor.

The present bylaw is a good law. It protects the elderly.

Larz, May I, through you ask (beg would be a better word) one of the selectmen to present a motion to pass over article 13? I cannot understand why the selectmen are so eager to give up their appointing powers.

I would like to have the COA continue under the present bylaw, continue under the supervision of present town employee and continue to be an 11 member board. I cannot understand how in these crucial times anyone can say to volunteers "We don't need your services."

I have just checked with town hall and I was told that the COA will hold a special meeting, Thursday, April 25, 1991 at 2 p.m. This is a posted, open meeting and the public has a right to be present. This meeting will be held at the Buzzell Multi-Service Senior Center, 15 School St., Wilmington, Mass. at 2 p.m.

Voters of Wilmington! Seniors! You who will stay in this town until you are seniors! You have much to lose if you let this article pass.

"The Council on Aging isn't broken. Don't fix it!"

As usual what is written here is my opinion and I pray that this time people will listen to me. As I reread this letter I realize I don't understand the need for Article 13.

Thanks again, Larz.

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

Because of the times we live in, with the great many fiscal and social problems, we have witnessed a revolution in the practices of how we hire, fire and layoff personnel. Standards are changing rapidly - in management, direction and staffing.

We know that the accepted practice is to hire and retain the most qualified person to fill the position. Seeking out individuals whose talents and characteristics give him/her the best chance of achieving success. In short, the primary objective should be to invest in the human resource that is most likely to succeed. Although a strong advocate of Civil Service guidelines, I believe that there must be some modification in those guidelines to protect our community from losing valuable people due to a layoff. Seniority and loyalty cannot be ignored, but we must all ask ourselves an important question: will seniority and loyalty get the job done?

The survival of our state and our town, giving the rebelliousness of the taxpayer, depends on getting more and better services for every dollar of wage investment. Unfortunately for those of us who are public servants, when unemployment in our area is close to double digits, raising of taxes is unlikely, reduction of town employees and decreasing, if not eliminating capital spending seems to be the "easiest way out" for those residents who are truly unaware of the consequences in connection with the loss of valuable employees.

In this writer's opinion, when the strength of Tewksbury's government economy was strong, this did not necessarily lend credence to sound fiscal and managerial policies by some of our governmental leaders. It is not my intention to "point the finger of blame" at any individual elected or appointed official, I am only trying to convince the taxpayer that, the town employee was not to blame. Preserving jobs and our town is more important to me than any transitory gains in wages and fringe benefits. It should be noted however that, any increases that we town employees of Tewksbury got in the past has been taken away by inflation. People are supposedly making more, but there are actually few gains. When you look at area price increases, you will see that most, if not all town employees fell further behind even though they appear to be making more. Increases in energy, medical, schools, food and clothing have negated any real gain for any of us. Solutions to these problems are not necessarily found in new and brilliant ideas, although I do not want to discount anyone's efforts in providing their own opinions. Sometimes they can be discovered by making the old, proven ideas work, such as an honest day's work, respect for the given word, living within a budgeted income, and a willingness to make necessary sacrifices, short of jobs, to attain a worthwhile goal. Imagination and reciprocal trust are essential ingredients in making the process of collective bargaining work. The selectmen and town manager have to be more convincing that they genuinely want cooperation, not mere submission, in meeting the problems of Tewksbury.

Yours in cooperative spirit,
Ernest J. Lightfoot,
Town Employee

Living proof that when every second counts, you can count on us.

Heidi DiRienzo had just given birth to a healthy baby girl. Easily. And naturally. At a time of such happiness, what more could a woman need? A lot more, in Heidi's case. More doctors. More blood. More emergency care than anyone had anticipated as a postpartum hemorrhage suddenly changed a moment of joy to one of great risk. Fortunately, Heidi couldn't have been in better hands.

The New England Memorial obstetrical team is a finely-tuned group of specialists trained to handle complications with crucial speed, coordinating every move to assist and support one another. Together, they turned a life-threatening crisis around. The ample supply of blood and the presence of a full-time on-staff anesthesiologist were also vital factors in Heidi's swift stabilization.

Naturally, we wish you an easy, uncomplicated labor and hope the only aspects of our OB or midwifery programs you need to experience are our caring professionals and comforting setting—complete with warming lights and therapeutic whirlpool baths. It's reassuring to know, however, that when every second counts, you can count on us. And Heidi DiRienzo is living proof.

ATTENTION FELLOW CAMPERS AND RV OWNERS

The following excerpts are taken from a letter from the Town of Wilmington to Mr. Keith Hiltz on September 17, 1990. This letter was written regarding their 26' Coachman Camping Trailer. The Hiltz family uses the vehicle concerned for weekend camping and vacations.

"This letter is to inform you that per the zoning bylaws of the Town of Wilmington, Section 3.7.1 Mobile homes are not to be parked in a residential area.

"You are consequently ordered to remove this violation forthwith.

"Failure to comply with this order will also result in a fine of one hundred dollars ($100.00) per day."

The town law is written so vaguely that their camper or your's can be interpreted as a mobile home.

The Town of Wilmington also makes a habit of collecting excise tax on these very same vehicles which are prohibited. We understand the legitimate need to prohibit people from habitating in mobile homes in the Town of Wilmington.

In the 1990s we feel it is now time to change the wording of Law 3.7.1 to accomplish this and avoid misinterpretations.

We suggest prohibiting mobile homes by adding the phrase: "Except recreation vehicles in dead and maintained storage." To amend the zoning bylaw. (Article 37 of Town Meeting agenda).

This issue will be before the town meeting on April 27, 1991 starting at 1:30 p.m.

Your attendance would be appreciated.

We need your help and support in order to make these changes so there can be equality and consistency in the Town of Wilmington.

Lopez gains go-ahead to build on Kelly Hill

It was Manuel Amaro night, at the Wilmington Board of Appeals on April 23 (Tuesday).

Manuel Amaro, for many years a resident of East Cambridge, with a brother and other relatives in Wilmington, was a man who purchased real estate. He would show up at distress sales and at other places where house lots, unoccupied, were being sold because the owners could not afford to keep them. Manuel was a person who could drive a sharp bargain.

He owned a lot of unoccupied house lots in Wilmington, and in the Pinehurst part of Billerica when he passed on. Possibly he owned land in other communities too. The children of his brother John, a fine Wilmington carpenter, can probably tell.

Attorney Bob Peterson, Tuesday night had three cases before the Wilmington Board of Appeals, three lots of land which did not conform to the zoning bylaws, nor had parts of the nearby roads ever been brought up to Wilmington standards, and had to have "official map" hearings.

The house lots were on Kelly Hill, southerly of Shawsheen Avenue. Sixteen interested neighbors were present, to hear the case, and to offer opinions from time to time. The discussion lasted 38 minutes.

The original plan, from which Attorney Peterson was working, dated back to 1908. A man named Mark Lopez of Dracut, is the present owner of the property.

The Wilmington Board of Appeals granted a favorable verdict.

Backyard gardening

The timing may have been terrible, but the results of Sunday's storm will certainly benefit gardeners over the next month. We all look forward to outdoor activities on Sundays in April, but this past Sunday we were all pretty much under cover from dawn to dusk. The three inches of rain we recorded were the equivalent of one month's average rainfall. The benefit, of course, is that with our subsoil supercharged with water, we can set aside any fears of water shortages in our gardens for a good six weeks.

Let's talk about woodchucks. This large field rodent with a monstrous appetite for tender young greens has been bedeviling New England farmers and gardeners since the days of the Pilgrims. (I wonder how the Indians controlled them?) I have fought the good fight with chucks since 1961 here in North Wilmington, since we moved here from Cambridge. Early on I shot and gassed them, all the while feeling uneasy about destroying them, even though I had put them into the same mental niche as mosquitoes, Japanese beetles and pigeons. The older I get the more I am moving toward a "live and let live philosophy." (Except for mosquitoes.)

You will read of some rather strange methods for controlling woodchucks. Organic Gardening magazine once recommended spreading lion manure around the garden as a deterrent. Only problem is, lion manure is not commonly available at your local garden supply store. Another idea I've heard is to run toward the chuck yelling at the top of your lungs and waving your arms wildly. Three or four such runs are supposed to encourage Mr. Woodchuck that he is not exactly welcome in your neighborhood. Then, of course you can (if you don't own one) beg, borrow, buy or steal a large dog and allow him/her a long rope to patrol the garden area.

I finally resolved this problem by installing a sturdy chicken wire fence around the garden. I held off putting the fence in for several years, believing that it could not possibly be pleasing to the eye. I was wrong. A well staked, straight line wire fence is not an eyesore after all. After a dozen years, I have yet to see a woodchuck inside the fence. Should you decide to protect your garden with a fence, I would recommend that you purchase four foot fencing, and insert 10 or 12 inches of the mesh into the soil. This will help to ensure that some enterprising woodchuck will not burrow under your fence to again access to your bean and squash plants. Woodchucks and rabbits will usually take the path of least resistance when they encounter a fence; they'll just keep on moving, which requires taking a left or a right turn. I still occasionally see a chuck in the wooded area behind the garden and I have no doubt that they would be in the garden were it not for the fence.

Again this year, this column will print and respond to your written questions on vegetable gardening. You don't write letters much? Phone 658-5852 evenings and ask for Hugh.

Address notes to: Town Crier, P.O. Box 460, Wilmington, MA 01887 Attn. Backyard Gardening.

April 30 deadline on Tech-built home

Robert Perot considers himself a fortunate man. He hastens to add, however, that his wife, Jean, is the lucky member of the family. It was Jean's name that was drawn in lottery last spring to choose the person for whom students at Shawsheen Tech would construct a house. The Perots, who live in Burlington, own land on Connolly Street in Billerica where Tech students studying in the construction trades - carpentry, electrical, masonry, plumbing are now putting the finishing touches on a two story colonial home.

"My wife put her name in five years ago," Perot said, "and every year since." Despite the long wait, Perot said when Jean's name was drawn, "we didn't believe it. But we were certainly pleased." They were familiar with other houses the students built and were hoping they would be a lucky winner of what Anthony Bazzinotti, vocational coordinator calls "the last of the great deals."

Shawsheen students have been building houses for district residents since 1973, and the project will continue next year. Interested persons must own land in one of the five communities in the Shawsheen District and have a foundation in by the time school starts in September. "We take it from there," Bazzinotti said.

April 30 deadline

Bazzinotti said he would like to see more applicants and urges interested people to call the school business office to request an application. Deadline for applications for the upcoming school year is Wednesday, April 30.

Wilmington police news

During the week ending April 23, Wilmington police officers responded to 40 alarms, made 10 arrests and three protective custody detentions, assisted other departments on three occasions and completed 10 bank escorts.

One burglary was investigated along with six complaints of disorderly conduct. One larceny was reported, two motor vehicles were stolen and one vehicle was recovered.

Medical assistance was rendered seven times, five non criminal complaints were taken and 10 public services completed. Eight traffic accidents were checked out and four traffic services made. Alert neighbors reported 13 incidents of suspicious activity and six acts of vandalism are still under investigation.

Arrests

Tuesday afternoon Insp. Mike Celata drove to Lowell District Court to arrest Mark S. Rogers of that city on a Wilmington default warrant. He was transported directly to Woburn District Court for processing.

At three o'clock on Tuesday, Officer Jon Shepard, while on patrol on Middlesex Avenue stopped and arrested Donna Lavin, 29 of Somerville. Lavin was charged with operating after suspension of her license. She was bailed for an appearance in Woburn Court.

Officer Hubby, while on patrol on Concord Street at 4 a.m. Thursday arrested Darlene Cimino, 26 of Everett after a computer check revealed an outstanding warrant issued by Everett police. She was released to Everett officers a short time later for her appearance in Malden Court.

Raymond LaMarche, 26 of Bangor, Maine was arrested by Officer Joe Harris Friday night on a North Reading warrant charging him with defaulting on a charge of operating after revocation of license. He was released to North Reading officers. He was also issued a citation for operating after revocation and no inspection sticker.

Saturday night Officer Joe Waterhouse drove to Lynn to pick up Srun Sok of Lynn on the basis of a warrant issued by Wilmington. He was released on bail to appear in Woburn Court.

Responding to a wanted broadcast from Saugus Police at 3:45 a.m. Sunday Officer Paul Chalifour stationed himself on Rt. 93 to observe traffic. He stopped and arrested Randall R. Meyers, 37 of Saugus charging him with larceny of a motor vehicle and operating under the influence of alcohol. Meyers was released on bail to appear in Woburn District Court Monday morning.

At 5 a.m. Sunday, Officer David Sugrue drove to Billerica P.D. to arrest Paul Santos, 26 of Billerica on a default warrant. Unable to post $325 bail, Santos was held for the rest of the weekend and taken to court Monday.

Monday afternoon Officer Larry Redding arrested Stephen

Connolly, 28 of Winchester at Lowell District Court on a warrant and took him to Woburn Court for processing.

Between 2 and 4 a.m. Tuesday, Officer Paul Jepson arrested two men at different police stations. At 2:45 he arrested John Spinelli of North Reading at the Andover P.D. and at 3:30 he arrested Paul Luongo of Tewksbury at Lowell. Both men were held for Woburn Court in the morning.

Don't open that door!

During the past several weeks, area towns have reported several instances where an individual or individuals attempt to gain entrance to homes by posing as a water department employee or an electric company worker. The individual then asks the homeowner to bang on pipes or run water. While the householder is occupied, the suspect enters bedrooms and checks drawers or countertops for cash. They may also attempt to charge a fee for the service of checking the pipes and wiring.

These scam artists are targeting the elderly. They are well schooled and fast talkers. If you are approached by anyone with this or a similar story and you are unsure of their authenticity, lock the door and call the Wilmington Police at 658-3331.

Also, this is the time of the year when "Gypsy" hot top paying companies make their return to New England. Be suspicious of anyone who comes to your door with an offer to fix your driveway or walkways with "extra" or "leftover" hot top. Again, if you have any questions call the police department!!

Wilmington senior topics

Town Meeting Saturday

The Town Meeting will be held in the High school auditorium Saturday, April 27 starting at 1 p.m. Many warrant articles will be on the agenda, that will be debated and voted upon at this meeting. One of the articles will involve us as senior citizens in Wilmington. The article is #13 in your Warrant Book you received in the mail. It involves changing the name of the department to the Department of Elder Services from the Department of the Council on Aging.

Special Council meeting

The second part of the article is to abolish the present council and replace it with a Commission on Aging. This article is getting many seniors very confused. They are at a loss as to how it will effect them. The Council on Aging will be holding a Special Council meeting in the function room of the Buzzell Senior Center, 15 School St., Thursday afternoon April 25 starting at 2 p.m. This article will be the only issue on the agenda at this meeting for discussion. What will or will not be the effect on the seniors will be made clear to us at this meeting. I certainly would strongly advise all the seniors to attend this meeting and the town meeting Saturday before you vote. The only way we can find out how it will effect us is to learn as much as we can ourself and then vote the way we feel. Don't get second hand information it is best to listen and make up our minds.

Ceramic Class

Ceramic class will begin its morning classes on Wednesday May 1 from 9 a.m. to noon. This is an excellent class with a very talented instructor. If you are looking for a productive hobby this class may be the perfect one for you. The students are very proud of the ceramic pieces they are working on. And proud they should be they are beautiful. If you are recently retired and looking to find a way to fill those hours spent at your place of employment, why not give it a try? Checking our records we have many seniors who do not have a photo id card. If you do not have one, go to the center and we will take your picture and give you a Wilmington senior citizen photo id card. We have a few cards typed waiting to take pictures to put on the cards but we cannot reach the seniors. If you are one of them, will you come so we can complete these cards?

Hospital bed available

We have a complete electric hospital bed offered to us. Any senior who can use it may call the center 657-7595 or 658-2258. It is in excellent condition used very little.

Volunteer artist

The center needs a volunteer artist to teach the art class. You don't have to be a professional teacher. All we want is a person who enjoys art with some classes in how to sketch and paint. We know there are some good artists in Wilmington who could teach the class. All the students want is to have someone with enough knowledge to help them. Please call the center if you can help us. It will be greatly appreciated.

Social Security notes

Many seniors are not aware that wives and widows can get Social Security benefits when their husbands retire, become disabled or die. And men have the same benefit rights on their wives earnings. Seniors do not know that if they are divorced, are 62 or older, their ex spouse is 62 or older and divorced at least two years and had lived with them 10 years can get benefits even if the spouse is not retired. The benefits received by a former spouse will not effect any benefits to a current spouse.

Two year wait eliminated

In January 1991, the two year wait for people who were already getting spouse's benefits at the time of their divorce was eliminated. Also in January 1991, it was made into law that a couple who married in good faith and later found it was invalid can qualify for benefits on the workers Social Security record. The same as a legal spouse mentioned above. The benefits for a spouse 65 or older is 50 percent of the workers benefits. It will be reduced for each month below 65, to 37 1/2 at age 62. For more information call the Social Security Administration 1-800-234-5772.

"Without Rocco, Jimmy and Si, there wouldn't have been a Lions Club for me to join," said King Lion Hap Power.

Student of the month: For the month of April the following students have been selected by their teachers as Students of the Month: Sara Collings, Sean Moroney, Brianna Daisy, Robert Maxwell, Benjamin DeGennaro, Nicole DeBlois, Janet Travis, Allen Fisher, Jeffrey Coughlin, Sueng Wook Kim and Jennifer DeSimone.

Pizza parties: Several of the classrooms were treated to pizza for lunch because their classes competed in the Pizza Hut's Book-It program. Everyone in the class must read a minimum of 300 pages of extra curricular reading to accomplish the goal. The following classes made it: Mrs. Latham, Mrs. Keating, Mrs. Flaherty, Ms. Peterson, Ms. Barry and Mrs. Rowe's. Many thanks to the parents who picked up the pizza for the children.

Screening: Pre-school screening will take place at the Woburn Street School Tuesday, May 7 from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 3 p.m.; Wednesday, May 8 from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 3 and Thursday, May 9 from 9 a.m. to noon.

Summer school: Wilmington's school system offers summer school classes in remedial reading and mathematics as well as enrichment courses such as creative writing, computers and dramatics. Sessions run for three weeks and are offered twice in order to accommodate parents' summer vacation plans. Brochures offering further information should be forthcoming from the superintendent's office.

Ms. Girouard's classroom: Grade five children are currently working on their class poetry books containing several types of poetry. Preparation for this year's restaurant, called "The Graceful Butterfly" are underway. Watch for the grand opening in late May or early June.

Woburn Street School

Spring is in the air at Woburn Street School. Flowers are blooming and the birds are busy building their new nests. Also building nests are Mrs. Davine's second graders. A4 students enjoyed creating edible nests of peanut butter, chow mein noodles and lots of other goodies. Miss Field's kindergartners are also excited about spring. Loving our early warm weather these B10 students are learning all about outdoor recess and, are getting ready for a visit to the Discovery Museum in Acton.

Hollywood here we come! With everybody health conscious these days, Ms. Proias C10 students have produced their own health show this special production may be viewed on WCTV Channel 30. An excellent job was done by all.

Fifth graders in Mrs. Caruso's class are now engaged in experiencing "The Voyage of the Mimi." This television series provokes and sustains the interest of students by bringing into the classroom a scientific adventure story about whales with a series of documentary "expeditions" to places where science of many different kinds is done. This fascinating voyage delights each child's curiosity.

Volunteers are needed to help with the ice cream smorgasbord. Notices will be sent home with the children.

The next Pac meeting will be held Tuesday, May 14 at 9:30 a.m. in the cafeteria. Elections for next year's officers will be held. There is a great need for participation by all.

Mr. Smith goes to Billerica

Newly elected Shawsheen Tech School Committee member Michael Smith received a folder of information from secretary Ann Corrieri at the board's meeting on Tuesday night. John Gillis, left, was elected vice-chairman in the annual re-organization. Smith upset incumbent Kevin Sowyrda in Saturday's election.

Sowyrda to be feted at May 28 dinner

Former Shawsheen Tech School Committeeman, Kevin, Sowyrda will be feted at a special dinner May 28 by his former colleagues on the board. The dinner will begin at 6 p.m. in the school's Guest Dining Room. Following the meal, committee members will say a few words to recognize Sowyrda's contributions to the school in the past six years and will gift him with a plaque.

Senator McGovern to be honored at Tech

State Senator Patricia McGovern, chairperson of the Senate Ways and Means Committee, will be the honored guest at the Wednesday, May 1 annual spring meeting of the Shawsheen Tech Advisory Committee at the school.

"An Evening to Honor Senator Pat McGovern" begins at six o'clock with dinner prepared and served by Shawsheen culinary arts students followed by meetings of the 19 individual committees that meet several times a year to discuss curriculum, materials, and equipment and make recommendations to the school on changes to keep the programs current.

Charles Lyons, superintendent-director, said Senator McGovern's support has been instrumental in making possible the recent renovations at the school.

"Due to your constant support for our school district, we were able to receive the school building assistance reimbursement on our recently renovated facility," he wrote to Senator McGovern. "You were a crucial element in our success, and we would like to highlight this evening thanking you for your pivotal importance," he added. Lyons said that while other school districts "lamented and complained our school committee took aggressive action to modernize our facility. Our towns supported our request and then you guaranteed state reimbursement saving member towns millions in future bonding costs."

Nearly 300 representatives of business and industry who serve on Shawsheen program advisory committees have been invited to the spring meeting, which also includes a gathering of the general advisory committee, one representative from each of the 19 technical programs who meet with the administration and school committee following the individual committee meetings, to discuss the evening's events. Minutes of the program advisory meetings are kept for review and possible implementation.

The program and general advisory committee members "are experts in each of their fields," noted Anthony Bazzinotti, director of vocational/technical programs and meeting planner. "These representatives are invaluable to our programs," he said. Not only do they meet periodically at Shawsheen, but they invite Shawsheen Tech instructors to their facilities "so the teachers can observe an upgrade their knowledge and skills. Advisory committee members also provide job placement to many of our students and graduates, and have donated thousands of dollars worth of equipment, materials, and supplies."

"Three years ago the advisory committee made numerous quality recommendations to modernize our facility and upgrade our laboratories with state-of-the-art equipment. Our communities approved our capital renovation plan, our facility has been modernized and Senator

McGovern guaranteed state reimbursement of 65 percent saving local taxpayers millions of dollars. Our school district, our students, and our Advisory Committee is indebted to her responsible leadership. On Wednesday, May 1, we plan to appropriately thank Senator McGovern for her constant and consistent support to Shawsheen Tech.

Oath of office

Wilmington Town Clerk Priscilla Ward administered the oath of office to the victorious candidates at Town Hall Saturday night, following the election. From left, Mrs. Ward, Charles Gilbert, Robert Peterson, James Stewart, Robert Cain, Shirley Callan and Joan Sadowski. Michael Smith was not present due to a death in the family.

Rep. Krekorian targets rhetoric on salary increases

State Representative Robert Krekorian, one of three representatives for Wilmington has an opinion in the controversial issue of increases for salaries for state cabinet officers which apparently has not been reported in the Boston newspapers.

Krekorian supports the governor's position. He regards the focus which was placed on the advisors to the Governor as a "cheap political shot" by the majority leadership.

"In all the press statements issued by the Senate President, the Speaker of the House, and the Democrat Chairman of House Ways and Means - none rose above the level of pure political rhetoric. All failed to mention the consolidation of the Governor's and Lieutenant Governor's staff, resulting in an approximate savings of $300,000. All failed to mention the elimination of 16 sub cabinet positions for a savings of $733,000. All failed to mention that 242 other people in state service earn $85,000 or more. All failed to mention that during the same time, the Democrat controlled legislature expanded its payroll by 24 positions!"

Last week the Governor publicly admitted error in judging "the temper of the people." He challenged the Democrats to back up their statements that the cabinet salary was not a political slap in the face. The Governor then introduced a bill that would have cut all state salaries of $60,000 and up by five percent, including those so-called Independent authorities, for an annual savings of over $6.5 million."

"Enter the Majority Party - a substitute bill ala Flaherty and Bulger. A proposed savings of a whopping $7,000.

"All but three Democrats voted for this substitute bill, effectively killing for the time being the Governor's salary savings package. It remains to be seen whether we can revive the bill on the House floor."

"In the final analysis, the State House and the public had its attention focused for 10 days on political posturing that revolved around an annual savings of approximately $150,000. Shame on all of us!"

"The good news is that at this pace, the potential $2 billion fiscal 1992 budget deficit could be addressed in 133,333 days (365 years)!"

"Let me apologize for making light of an issue that has angered many people, the timing of the salary increase was bad. The political symbolism was worse. But when you get right down to it, the merit of the issue fell on the side of the Governor."

Dollars for Scholars sets $2000 goal

Since December, 1990, a broad cross section of Tewksbury citizens has met regularly to discuss the creation of a local "Dollars for Scholars" chapter which would be affiliated with the Citizens Scholarship Foundation of America, Inc. This is a tax free organization which assists and guides cities and towns throughout the United States with community scholarship programs.

Under the leadership of Glen Beasley, president, the committee has set a fundraising goal of $2000 for this year. The Raytheon Corporation will match this amount if the goal is met.

A "Dollars for Scholars" dance will kick off the fundraising activities Friday, April 26 at Tewksbury Memorial High School at 7 p.m. For more information, call the student representative at the high school.

Broad support has been shown by Tewksbury citizens and others interested in raising tax free scholarship funds. Representative James Miceli has expressed his support. Town Manager Paul Cressman, Chief John Mackey and Town Clerk Elizabeth Carey have been active in planning sessions. Raytheon's corporate sponsor representative, Paul Foley, has also played an active role. Officers include Mary Jane Marcucci, vice president; Donna Beasley, secretary; Barbara and Philip Sands, publicity.

Youth leaders are involved: Mrs. James Davos, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Friend, Mr. and Mrs. Kevin Mahoney, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Moore, and Mr. and Mrs. William Sullivan. There is considerable interest among municipal workers of the town who have indicated their desire to contribute.

Students from the high school student council, Kristen Beasley and Jane Marcucci have taken leading roles in getting "Dollars for Scholars" off to a flying start.

Advisory Board serves as Health Center eyes, ears

When Winchester Hospital assumed ownership of the Regional Health Center in Wilmington last year, the Health Center's Advisory Board looked forward to exciting and worthwhile changes. Currently made up of seven people who live and work the communities served by the Center, the board has a dual purpose says its chairman, James Ficociello, D.D.S., a dentist in Wilmington.

"We fit the classic definition of a community advisory board, in that we serve as a conduit for information and concerns from the community to the Health Center's administration and staff," he explains. "And just as important, we act as an advocate for the health center within the community, to ensure that people understand what resources are available at the Center."

William and Chris Lindsey of Tewksbury are husband wife members of the board. Bill Lindsey puts the "classic" definition on the board's role this way. "We serve as the Health Center's eyes and ears in the neighborhoods it serves." The Lindseys suggest that the community let them know of their problems or suggestions, which they will bring to the health center's attention.

Raymond MacNamara, owner of MacNamara Tire in Wilmington, has been an active member of the board since the Health Center opened in 1978 and is currently its treasurer. "The Center is vital to the community," he says. "But for it to be truly responsive to the community's needs, people need to let us know what kind of services they want and need."

The board meets quarterly to address service and administrative issues of concern to the community. For example, if there's a need for a certain type of medical specialist or community health education program, the board brings it to the center's administration for consideration.

The Regional Health Center currently offers a range of service including walk-in urgent care services, internal medicine and obstetrics/gynecology. Referral services including laboratory, radiology, rehabilitative and nutrition services are also available.

Kathleen Barnes, director of the Regional Health Center comments, "We would like the community to share with us any of their health care needs and wants. They should feel free to suggest any recommendations or discuss any concerns."

"If a community resident has a concern or problem, I'm always available," said Gerald T. Richards, a board member from North Reading. "I'm also glad to pass along folks' appreciation or words of praise, too."

Wilmington resident Sandie Cushing, the board's secretary, and Chris Noyes of Tewksbury comprise the rest of the board. Noyes, who joined the board two years ago, comments, "We try to monitor the attitudes and ideas in the community, and resolve individual problems that are brought to our attention."

"And bringing issues to the board's attention is really the key," adds Kathleen Barnes. "Because we can't resolve a problem or address a need that we don't know about."

David Stewart trained at Space Academy

David Stewart of Forrest Street, Wilmington trained recently, for a space adventure and explored the future of scientific exploration at U.S. Space Academy Level I in Huntsville, Ala.

Space Academy trainees in grades seven, eight and nine sample astronaut training by using Space Academy's special astronaut training simulators. They spin and twist in the multi-axis training simulator, an adaption of early Mercury program training equipment.

Trainees also bounce high in the air while experiencing the microgravity training chair, which is similar to equipment Apollo astronauts used in training for missions to the moon. They also spin and turn in the five degrees of freedom trainer, which was used by Gemini astronauts preparing for early spacewalks.

Space Academy Level-I trainees use the nation's only full scale space shuttle exhibit to get a better understanding of how the shuttle works. Then they use Space Academy's realistic mission control and space shuttle orbiter mockups for training prior to a pair of simulated space missions.

Each team of 20 trainees is divided for the mission, with half in mission control, monitoring activities aboard the shuttle. Each person has a specific task: mission director, flight director, principal investigator and more. All must work as a team with the shuttle crew to ensure a successful mission.

The orbiter crew includes a commander and pilot, whose controls move the hydraulically-powered cockpit. Mission specialists don space suit mockups and are strapped into spacewalk simulators for work outside the orbiter. Others perform experiments using Spacelab and Skylab hardware that was used for actual astronaut training.

Trainees in Space Academy programs are housed in the Space Habitat, a futuristic dormitory built to simulate aspects of the Space Station.

At NASA's nearby Marshall Space Flight Center, trainees watch as engineers and scientists design and build prototypes of the 1990s Space Station Freedom.

They also enjoy the many hands-on activities and demonstrations at the U.S. Space and Rocket Center. And they learn the history of space exploration by touring the Space Center's rocket park, the most comprehensive collection of manned spaceflight rockets on earth.

Space Academy also offers the advanced, college accredited Space Academy Level II, an eight day program for high school students, and Aviation Challenge, a five day program for grades seven through 12 and adults that is patterned after the training of high performance jet pilots.

U.S. Space Camp has five day programs for youngsters fourth through sixth graders in Huntsville, fourth through seventh grades at the Space Camp campus near NASA's Kennedy Space Center in Florida.

Healthy heart starts in childhood

Studies show that hardening of the arteries, which is in part in part linked to unhealthy cholesterol levels, begins in childhood. As with adults, a child's lifestyle, including diet and exercise, will influence their risk for heart disease.

"Healthy Heart Start for Children" offered by Winchester Hospital, is a program which teaches parents how to minimize risk factors for heart disease, shop for healthy foods and read labels. Participants will also learn ideas for healthy snacks for lunch boxes and how to make smart fast food choices.

"Healthy Heart Start for Children" will be held Monday, April 29 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Regional Health Center in Wilmington, an affiliate of Winchester Hospital. For price information, call Winchester Hospital (617) 756-2220.

Understanding TMJ

For dentists, nurses and dental hygienists interested in understanding Temporomandibular Joint (TMJ) disorders, Winchester Hospital now offers a program called "Understanding TMJ."

The course includes identifying TMJ, describing the signs, symptoms and etiology of TMJ, the various evaluation methods, and techniques used to determine TMJ disorders, and discussing treatment options. Three contact hours will be awarded.

The course is offered from 7 to 10 p.m. May 8 at the Regional Health Center in Wilmington, an affiliate of Winchester Hospital.

For price information, contact Winchester Hospital at (617) 756-2220.

Adolescent seminar at Wilmington Library

"It's my life! I should be able to do with it what I want!" demands the adolescent. This outburst is usually followed by a parental cry of "Not in my house you won't!"

"Conflicting Needs as Adolescents Strive for Independence" will be presented at Wilmington Memorial Library Tuesday, April 30 at 7 p.m. by Carol Golub, Ph.D., and Michele Welch, Ph.D., psychologists on the staff of the Wilmington Family Counseling Service.

The needs of adolescents to find their own identities, separate from their families, and identify with their peer group as a transition to becoming their own independent adult will be presented by Dr. Welch.

The needs of parents to be sure their adolescents are ready for increased responsibility and independence and their fears of lessening controls will be presented by Dr. Golub.

Through their dialogue, Dr. Golub and Dr. Welch will clarify these conflicting needs of parents and adolescents and provide guidelines for families to make the transition through adolescence smoother.

The program will be co-sponsored by the Wilmington North and West Intermediate Schools. The public is invited.

Register by May 3 for "Positive Parenting, II"

Monday, May 6, Special Education Programs and Services of the Tewksbury Public Schools will present the second in a series of three programs for parents on the topic of "Positive Parenting: The Role of Self Esteem in Healthy Development."

The session will be held from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. in the conference room of the Center Annex, the office of the administrator of special education on Pleasant Street in Tewksbury.

This is the second program in a three-session series. The presenter will be Martha Byam, a well-known parent trainer. Parents will be provided with some "tools" to assess their child's self-esteem as well as some practical tips on how to enhance children's sense of themselves. Participants will also have an opportunity to explore how they feel about themselves as parents and how that influences the child/parent relationship.

This program is provided free of charge to Tewksbury residents. Parents interested in participating are asked to register for the session by calling Dr. Michele F. DeAngelis, Administrator of Special Education, Tewksbury Public Schools at (508) 851-6796 no later than Friday, May 3.

TMHS girls stars for all seasons

The Tewksbury High School girls' track team continues to impress whether it be winter or spring. This group of Tewksbury girls wins under any conditions. The chill of this early spring failed to turn back the Redgals Saturday, as Mary Brady, Debbie Takach, Kim Farrand and Heather Farrand all starred and TMHS' records fell at the Wilmington Invitational Girls' Meet.

Brady won the long jump with an effort of 16-8 and three quarters while also taking the 220 run with a time of 26.0. Brady also teamed up with Takach along with Kim and Heather Farrand to win the 4x440 relay event with a 4:14.6 time.

Takach also broke the TMHS' record in the 330 hurdles with a 45.9 first place finish. Heather Farrand shattered another school record with her 11:44.5 first place time in the two-mile. Kori Wyshak took a second place in the hurdles, but still broke a school mark with her 16.2 time in that event.

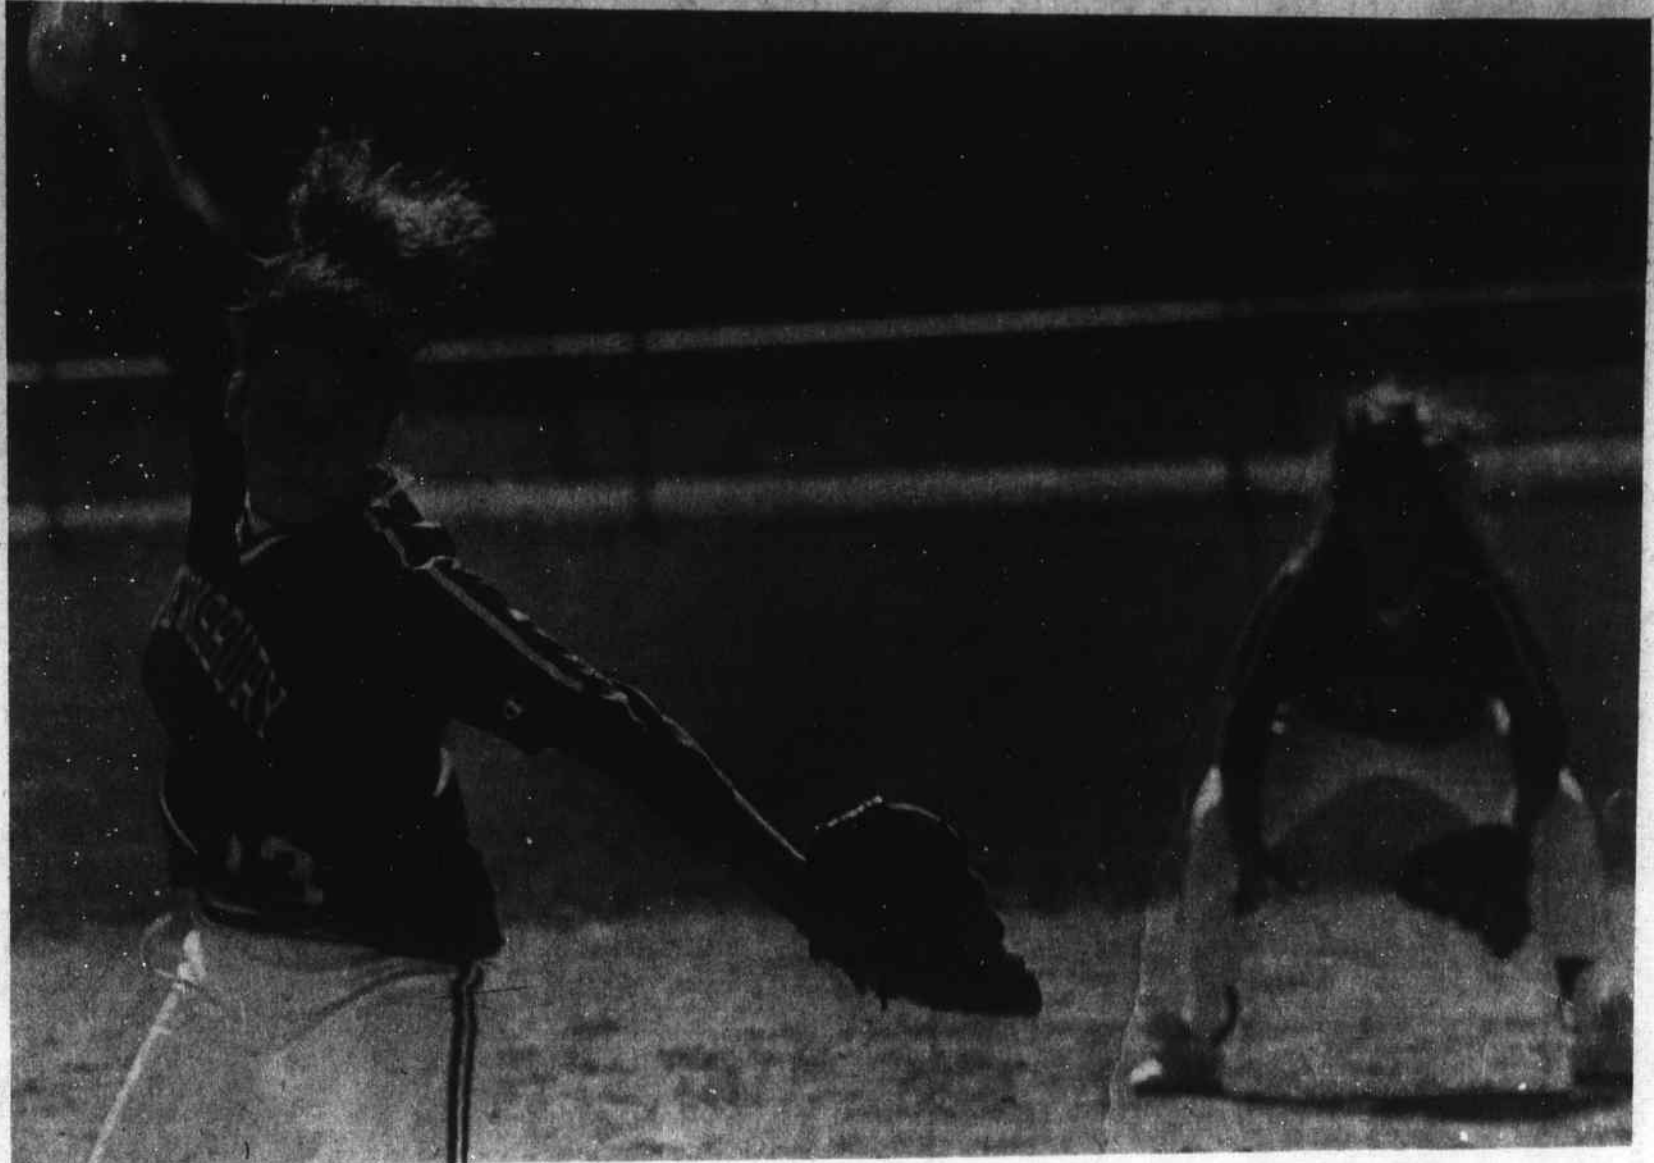

The host Wilmington girls managed 10 points Saturday and were led by the efforts of Kristine Przyjemski with a fourth place in the triple jump and Jen Rago's third place in the javelin.

Shrewsbury's girls took first place Saturday with 102 total points followed by Andover (79) and Tewksbury (75).

O'Brien Road Race Sunday

The Kevin O'Brien Five Mile Road Race is set for this Sunday with reporting time at the Longmeadow Tennis Club at 10 a.m. The race starts at 11 a.m. The pre-entry fee is $6.00, while the post-entry rate is $7.00. All the proceeds from the race will benefit the Kevin J. O'Brien Memorial Scholarship Fund.

Trophies will be awarded to the top three finishers in each division that includes a wheelchair division. The first 200 pre-registered applicants will receive t-shirts. Shower facilities will be available at Northmeadow and free beer and refreshments will be served following the race.

Early season showdown

The surprising Tewksbury High School softball team and pitcher Almee Brooks took on Lowell High School in a Merrimack Valley Conference showdown Tuesday. Getting ready to field her position behind French is TMHS secondbaseman Jill Klerowski.

Wilmington Youth Soccer

A' squad knots Everett

The Wilmington boys under 12 Division III A soccer team played to a scoreless tie against Everett in recent action. The young Wildcats have not been scored upon this season.

It was a well played game by both teams, with Wilmington having a slight advantage on the offensive end.

If not for the great play of the Everett goalie, the game easily could have ended in Wilmington's favor.

Although no goals were scored, fine offensive efforts were turned in by Sean McNabb, Mike Genetti, and Matt Kacamburas.

This week's shutout was won by the defense, as halfbacks Chuck Vallas, Jeff Arciero and Chris Burns played outstanding two-way soccer.

Whenever there was a deep rush by Everett, Alex (The Wall) Athanassiou would put a foot in to break up the threat.

Earl Burns played another fine game in goal, scoring his second straight shutout.

Under 12 I

The Division II A boys under 12 I team split its' first two games with a 2-1 loss to a good Woburn club and rebounding the following week to an easy 6-1 romp over a young Billerica team.

The Woburn game started out well for Wilmington, as they broke into the early lead.

Doug Bonarrigo sent a perfect corner kick to the front of the Woburn goal and Darryl Plimpton quickly pushed the ball past the Woburn keeper.

Unfortunately, Wilmington relaxed after its' quick goal and soon found itself down by a 2-1 score.

Wilmington put on a tremendous rush at the end of the game with hard shots by the to no avail. Doug Bonarrigo earned himself the star of the game with some stellar defensive plays and clearing kicks during the second half.

The Billerica game featured goals by Bill Covino, Scott Fullerton, Nick Athanassiou, Chris Kilburn, Joey Bamberg, Danny Bennett and two very close misses by Dennis Ingram.

Billerica was overmatched and undermanned and only managed to score after Wilmington started to pull two and three players off the field later in the second half.

Keepers Bamberg and Adam Vogel played excellent games in goal for Wilmington.

Under 10 Division

The new Wilmington team enjoyed its' second victory with a 3-1 win over Wakefield.

It was a hard fought game, but with Wilmington's strong defense the locals came away victorious.

John Betts led off with the first goal of the game, but Wakefield came back to score its' only goal. John Betts received a Jimmy Rourke pass to score a goal.

Martin D'Angelo was in net and kept the game at 2-1 for the first half.

Derek McLaren played goal in the second half, with Jeffrey Cannon and Joey Delaney on defense.

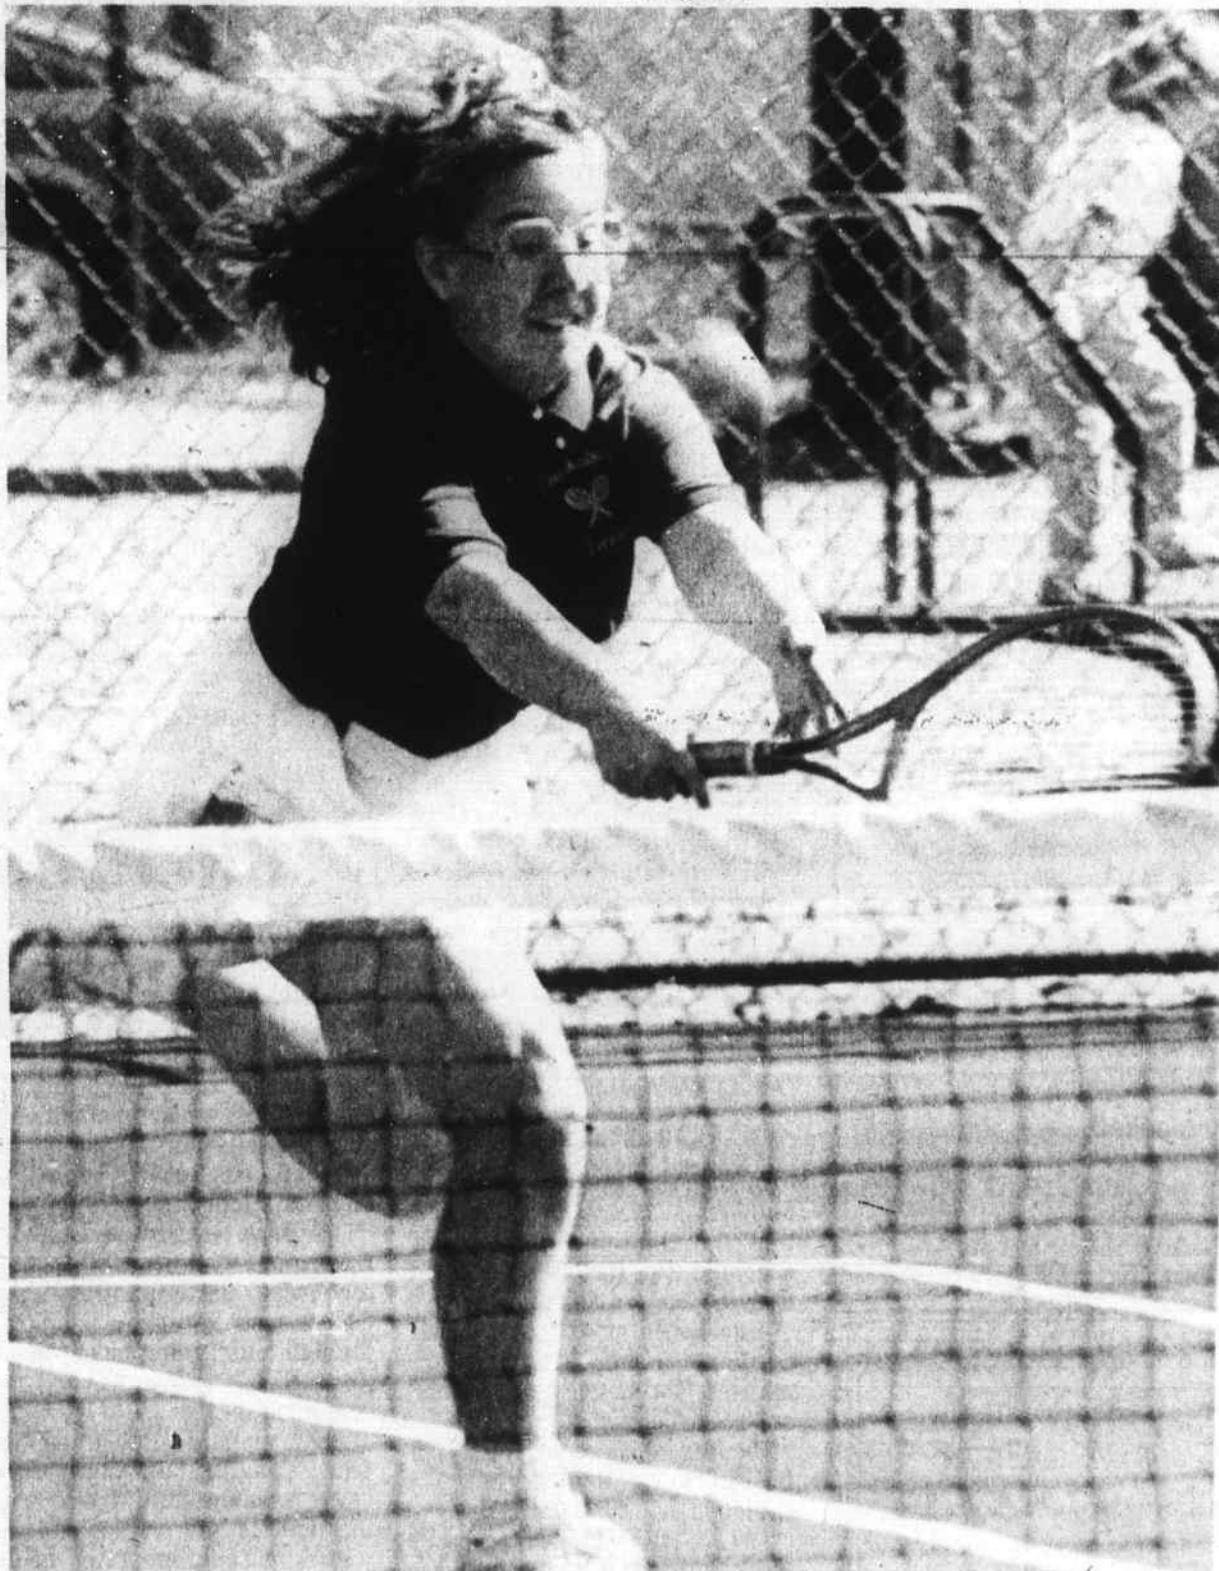

John Betts went on to score his third goal of the game to clinch the win.

The Wilmington team traveled to Burlington for its' next win. Michael Halas led the Wilmington rush, scoring right off the bat.

Next came a goal from John Betts. Burlington came back to score two goals, but with an upfield pass from Ryan Jensen, Jimmy Rourke was able to score.

Martin DeAngelo played well in net with defensive help from A.J. Mitzan and Jeff Cannon as the first half scored stood at 3-2.

Jen makes rush to net

Tewksbury's Jen Brooks sprints to the net to return this serve against Lowell High School in Merrimack Valley Conference girls' tennis action at the Livingston Street Courts Tuesday afternoon.

Frosh no hitter

Tewksbury High School freshman pitcher Greg Bielecki hurled a no-hitter Monday afternoon as the Redmen frosh routed Lawrence at the Lancers' diamond, 15-0. Bielecki hurled the seven inning distance, striking out 16 batters along the way.

The Tewksbury attack was led by Randy Lavoie with two hits, giving the freshman four safeties in his last two games.

WHS baseball

McManus sparks Wildcats

The Wilmington Wildcat varsity baseball team played its' fourth game against Lynnfield at home last week as a warmup to the start of their Merrimack Valley Conference season.

Matt McManus pitched seven complete innings, struck out five and gave up five hits and five runs.

Derrick Stokes scored the first run in the first inning on Bob Flemming's sacrifice fly to leftfield.

In the third inning Dave DiCenso doubled, bringing home John O'Reilly and Bob Flemming.

Dennis Walsh then sent DiCenso home on a sacrifice fly to left.

In the sixth inning Dennis Walsh came home on a single by Medeiros, who later scored on a single by Stokes.

Wilmington's second victory of the season was marred, unfortunately, by 18 walks.

INTRODUCING The Toro Recycler Mower

Specifically designed to give you a healthy, beautiful lawn without bagging. Here's how it works: first a specially designed blade lifts the grass, cuts it evenly, and directs the clippings into the grass deflectors. Those patented deflectors redirect the clippings back into the blade to be cut and recut into fine particles. These tiny particles of grass are then returned to the turf where they quickly decompose, naturally fertilizing the lawn without contributing to thatch buildup.

College scholarships

Over 100,000 collegiate athletic scholarships are available each year to male and female high school and junior college student athletes.

Contrary to popular belief, students don't need to be All-State to qualify. Much of this money goes unused.

A new publication with forms, sample letters, and tables of factual information is available for student-athletes. It takes students step-by-step through the important process of getting an athletic scholarship and includes college and conference listings.

For information on how to get a collegiate athletic scholarship, send a self addressed, stamped envelope to the National Sports Foundation, 612A Willow Dr., P.O. Box 940, Oakhurst, N.J. 07755.

MC Hall of Fame

Headmaster Brother Robert J. Sullivan, C.F.X. has announced that nominations are being accepted for the 1991 Malden Catholic Athletic Hall of Fame.

Established in 1989, MC's Hall of Fame honors the school's athletes, coaches, administrators, and special contributors.

The Hall of Fame Committee will be accepting nominations for induction until June 15, 1991.

The selection process is based solely on what a candidate did in sports while at MC. Achievements in college or on the professional level will have no bearing on the selection committee's deliberations.

To be eligible for nomination the athlete must have participated in at least one varsity sport and must have graduated 10 years prior to nomination.

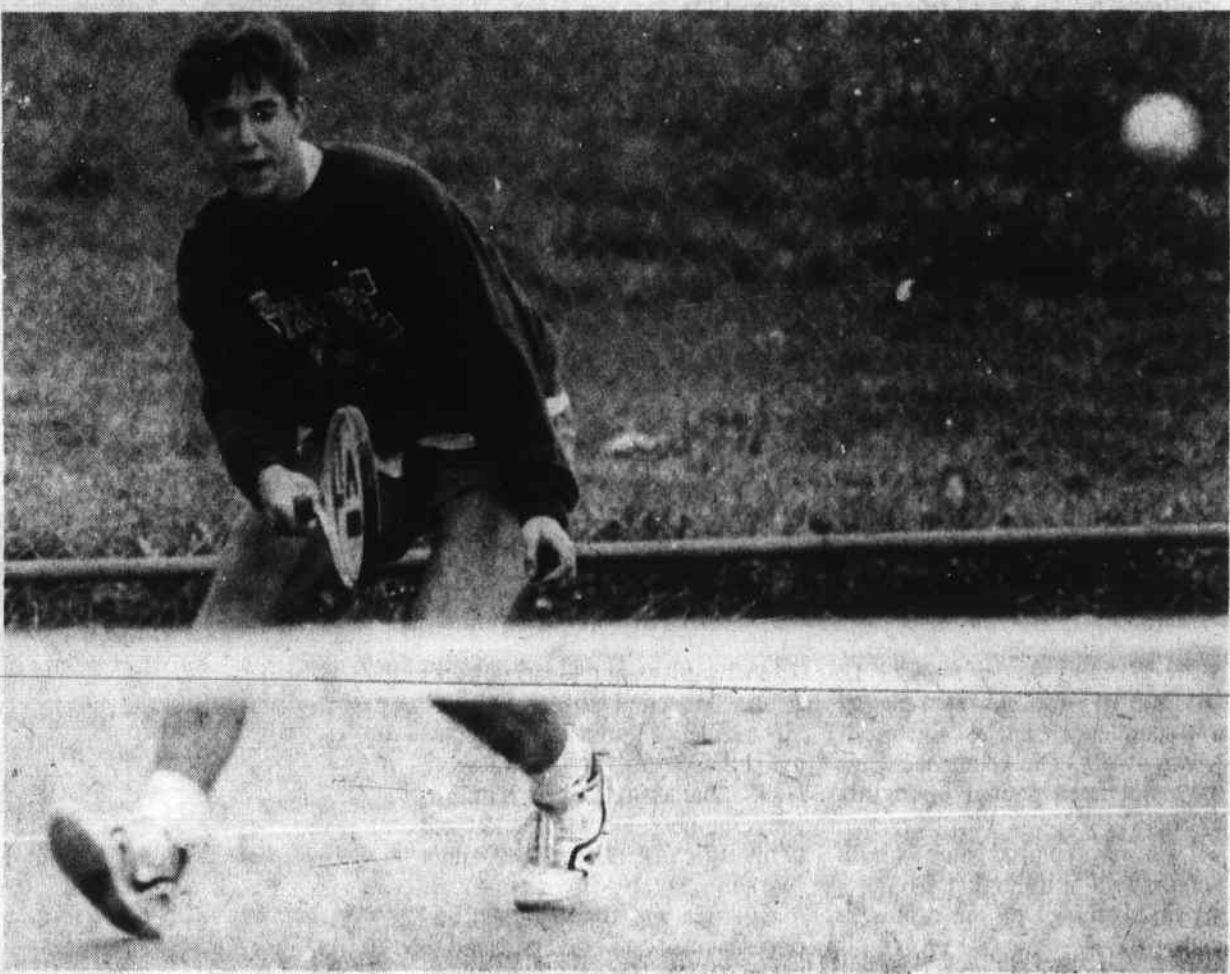

Selection of the recipients will be announced by September 1, 1991.

The 1991 Hall of Fame banquet is scheduled for Saturday, November 2.

Nomination forms are available by contacting Jim Flanagan at 617-322-3098.

A need for more environmental protection

by Bill Conlon
I've had this idea rattling around my skull for a years, so this week I ran it up the flagpole and see who'd salute it.

Few will argue that the state has a shortage of Environmental Police Officers (EPO) folks we commonly but mistakenly call game wardens.

Face it -- when was the last time an EPO did a license check on you? My only time was four years ago, out on the ice, and never before or since has a warden checked me out.

In my active lifetime of hunting and fishing, hitting ponds and fields almost every weekend, I've met an EPO just once. Only ONE TIME in my life? That's not nearly enough!

Environmental Police Officer is a harsh term, but it fairly describes the job. They enforce the law. But a game warden, by definition, is the protector of game. Maybe I'm off base here, but do we really need to put full-time police officers in the field for this job?

There are times, countless times, when I wished for an EPO to show up -- especially on the ice, where snowmobile violations are everywhere. Every unhelmeted head on a snowmobile is worth a ticket, but how many tickets have you seen written? Not enough.

Traditionally, people sweat when they fish without having a license in hand, but for no real reason. You are more likely to be hit by lightning than to be ticketed for fishing without a license.

I spent an hour or so chatting with

Sgt. Tom Rabbitt of the Mass Div. of Law Enforcement for the local district, and he said the state is short by about 40 EPOs, with entire towns near here that are virtually unprotected.

No, I won't name them.

There are exceptions, of course. Salisbury Beach is known to have a tough EPO, Tewksbury's own Bob Leboeuf no less, and I've seen folks get nervous when a rumor spreads that Bobby is on the beach. And no, that isn't a "kiss on the cheek" for Bobby Leboeuf. It's cold fact. They get nervous, since Bobby has the reputation of being tough.

But there are so many places that need an EPO to drop by. Countless places where the laws aren't being enforced.

Take these jerks in Lawrence, for example, the morons now snagging the salmon smolts as they're being stocked in the Merrimack River. Snagging is not a legal method of catching fish, and the precious salmon stocks are being damaged for no visible reason. So where are the wardens?

Yes, EPOs are cops, which means they have the authority to ruin your day. But you only get into hot water if you're doing something stupid, such as fishing without a license, exceeding the creel limit, or being a drunken jerk on the water.

My idea, simply, is to give the job of checking licenses (etc.) to older anglers, so that every pond would have a true "game warden" handy.

Why not field a volunteer force of game wardens, instead of only full-blown, armed EPOs? Retired gents spring to mind, since it seems every pond in the state has at least one retiree living on its shores who would happily take the chore. And why not? Shouldn't a game warden be an older chap who knows every spring and brush pocket, instead of a youngster who doesn't have time to see even half his assigned area?

Sgt. Rabbitt shot down the idea on sight. It just won't work, he said.

If the state hired all these retirees, there'd be costs, naturally. Even if the wardens served unpaid, the state is legally liable for them.

Well ... I suppose. Seems we're held hostage by lawyers again.

Once upon a time, Sgt. Rabbitt said, the state had "River Wardens" at work. Their sole job was to keep an eye on one river or stream. But Sgt. Rabbitt noted that those were the good old days, "when people were people," and the world wasn't full of drug dealers and nasties.

What if an older warden stumbled upon a drug-growing operation in the woods, Rabbitt asked? He'd be hard pressed to explain that he was not a "real cop" before the shooting started. Well ... I'll yield the point.

"It's really sad to think that we need people armed to protect fish," Rabbitt said, but the EPO's job is much more involved than looking at fishing licenses.

EPOs are charged with enforcing vehicle laws and possible pollution cases, along with fish and game law

Hunter Safety grads

Tewksbury Rod & Gun Club's latest Hunter Safety Course saw 57 students enrolled, including nine women, and all 57 successfully passed the final exam. The course includes gun safety, animal recognition, outdoor survival and a host of hunting-related topics. Chief Instructor George Rost (center, in the tie) hopes for an even bigger class for the fall Hunter Safety Course.

violations. They have full powers of arrest, he said, for a wide range of state and federal laws.

Besides, Rabbitt argued, if you're going to spend money for salaries, training, insurance, et al., (and it costs a bunch to train an Environmental Police Officer) why not use that money to field more regular EPOs? And if the guy is healthy enough to be a game warden job, he asked, why did he retire? Hmm.

My argument, which was rapidly losing steam by that point, is that an older game warden shouldn't need a gun. After a few months on the job, everyone on the pond would know him on sight, and just his reputation alone should suffice to carry the day. Every angler would know that he has the entire Environmental Police force behind him, to track down anybody who dared to do him harm. He didn't buy it.

Instead, Sgt. Rabbitt said the outdoors community would be better served by having people report any violations to the DLE, by calling 1-800-632-8075. Those "extra sets of eyes" in the field are a big asset to the hard-pressed force of EPOs. If violations are reported, he said, somebody will show up.

Still, Sgt. Rabbitt held out some hope, by saying that the state is now looking at "Deputy Environmental Police Officers."

Maybe someday. But it would be nice to see a warden once in awhile. Armed or not. The jerks are on the upswing, and we're losing.

Tip of the hat to George Rost for his latest Hunter Safety Class at the Tewksbury Rod & Gun Club. The latest batch numbered 57 hunters, with nine of them women. Good-o!

The S.W.E.A.T.ers will continue their clean-up efforts on the Shawheen River, but on April 27 they will have some valuable support. A team from Divers Environmental Survey will join S.W.E.A.T. in full SCUBA gear for a clean-up, after taking an underwater peek March 17. Those with canoes, boats, or just an urge to help clean up the environment should meet at 8 a.m. at the Whipple Road - Brown Street bridge, ready for work.

S.W.E.A.T. will hold the Son of the Great Race on May 11, from the headwaters of the Shawheen River in Bedford to the Merrimack River in North Andover. The annual race by canoe launches at 8 a.m. at the Great Road Shopping Plaza in Bedford, at Routes 4 - 225. Contestants should be at Tewksbury Rod & Gun on Friday, May 10, at 7 p.m. for signups, maps and a safety briefing. Call 851-4094, 851-9505, or 640-9977 for more info. S.W.E.A.T. needs your help.

I received a stack of five books of state pond maps from the Division recently, and it's a neat collection! I've got depth maps of Horn Pond (Woburn) and Lake Quinnapowett (Wakefield) ready for printing, so look for them soon. The books have maps from all five state districts, from North Adams to the Cape

Mite Blues finish strong

Mite Blue ends season

The Tewksbury Mite Blue Youth Hockey team wrapped up a successful season with a pair of wins against Salem and Medford.

Blue 4 Salem Black 1

Tewksbury earned a big win against league rival Salem Black with Sean Walsh leading the way with two goals.

Brian Smart assisted on both of Walsh's goals and added a goal as well.

Nickey Brown added an unassisted goal to help out. Strong goaltending by Brian Losh backboned by good defense by Joe Tripodi and Chris Beek led to the win.

Blue 5 Medford 1

A great team effort helped beat a strong Medford team as five different players scored for Tewksbury.

The goals were scored by Nicky Brown (shorthanded), Eric Patch, Kyle Afarian, Joey Lefebvre and Chris White.

Assists were earned by White, Adam Rooney and Brian Zimmerman. Rookie Rich Chambers recorded the win in goal. B.J. McLaughlin, Timmy Bowden and Billy Surran also showed fine team play.

The Wildcats played their fifth game at Greater Lowell Regional Vocational Technical High School in Tyngsboro.

In a game that was almost a mirror image of their first encounter, which was a 17-10 defeat for the Cats, Wilmington won, 16-10.

The contest was marked by errors as Dave DiCenso pitched five innings to pick up his first win against one loss for the season.

Dave received relief help from Jim Medeiros, who struck out five of the six batters that faced him to preserve the victory.

The hitting stars of the victory were Bob Voner, who went four for four including a triple, and John O'Reilly, who was three for five with three RBI's.

In their sixth game of the season the Wildcats defeated the Dracut Middies in a home game Tuesday.

Matt McManis pitched six innings, walking five and striking out eight, while giving up two runs and one hit.

Master Plan being given final touches

by Bill Conlon

Last minute changes to the Master Zoning Plan are currently under consideration, after a busy public hearing held last Wednesday in the Tewksbury town hall auditorium.

Planning Director Sean Sullivan, who sits on the Master Plan board, said the hearing began quietly, but within a half hour the hall was full. People had plenty of comments and suggestions he said, both minor and major ones.

Sullivan's only lament, however, is that people waited until the final weeks before town meeting to offer their comments, while the Master Zoning Plan Committee has been at work on the plan for three years.

Planning board chairman Robert Fowler, who was also at the session on Wednesday, said there was more comments about Master Plan given that night than in the three years.

The Master Zoning Plan Committee will meet tonight, Wednesday, in the planning board office in the DPW building to work on the planned changes, and a public hearing by the planning board itself on the zoning proposal is being considered for Thursday, April 25, in the same office.

Since the Master Zoning Plan has been printed, all changes will need to be made at town meeting, written and submitted to the moderator.

THE LONG AND THE SHORT OF IT

Women who would like a hairstyle that blends the femininity of long hair with the ease of care short hair should ask about the "wedge" cut. This style, which features the versatility of longer hair length near the face, works best on those who have straight hair with only a slight curl. A wedge cut calls for less than 10 minutes with a blow dryer and a vent brush to create a smooth look that is suitable for formal evening wear. For casual moments, a more tousled effect is made possible by using a brush with more widely spaced bristles. The wedge requires a maintenance cut every four to six weeks to keep its shape intact. Cuts can be more widely spaced if it is possible to get interim "nape trims" which keep the stacked layers in the back of the head from growing out.

No matter what type of hair you have, we cut, style, color or perm it to meet your needs. Let us help you look your best by calling today for an appointment at SHAWSEEN HAIR SALON, 161 Shawshen Ave. Rt. 129, Wilmington, (508) 658-9475. "Dreams, Dedication, Desire"

By DOUGLAS WOOD-BOYLE

Viewing the future is difficult for a six-year-old girl, however, for Stoneham's Nancy Kerrigan that look would have shown her a life of fame and glory, travel to all the glamour cities of the world and the adoration of many people.

Kerrigan, 21, hasn't all of a sudden become royalty, although one local television station labeled her the Ice Princess. She did not win the California Lottery and is not the heiress to a family fortune.

Her success comes the old fashioned way, she earned it. It was earned through years of hard work, personal sacrifice and early morning wake-up calls at 4:30 a.m.

It has all led to her holding the 1991 World Figure Skating Championship Bronze Medal and now being able to put her focus on the 1992 Winter Olympics in Albertville, France. She was part of the team including Kristi Yamaguchi (Gold) and Tonya Harding (Silver) that has made the first ever United States sweep of the international competition.

Next in line for the three of them is a United States tour with the 1991 Tour of World Figure Skating Champions. That tour starts next week and will be at Boston Garden on May 10.

"That should be neat. When I was young, I would go and watch the Bruins games and say 'I would like to skate here,'" Nancy said.

She notes that others who have done the tour before like Boston because the fans appreciate them here.

One ironic part of the tour is that Nancy will be in the same show with Peggy Fleming. The pair were compared by Canadian television broadcasters during the World Competition.

The fame has not gone to the young lady's head. She is actually a little reticent to talk about herself and worries about people thinking that she is to big for them.

However, as her mother, Brenda, notes after 15-years of hard work "it is just starting to pay off."

The pay-off is not in a financial way, but in the travel and attention that Nancy is getting. She is only allowed to earn a limited amount of money, in order to keep her amateur standing for the Olympics.

"When Nancy won the Worlds (on March 16) we got more mail for two weeks," Brenda said. She related the story of one card from Czechoslovakia addressed to: USA, Massachusetts, Stoneham, Nancy Kerrigan, figure skater.

How did it all start?

Nancy said "The rink is down the hill (from the house she and her parents, father Daniel, and brothers Michael and Mark, live in). My brothers were in youth hockey and my mother and father put me into the figure skating program."

"Who knew it would go this far," she added. "I enjoyed it. I liked to jump."

Brenda supports the fact that Nancy had a good time, especially in the early years. "She used to skate around the rink and whistle, she was very happy."

According to Nancy, jumping was her only technique for a long time. "For a lot of years I didn't have any style."

However, that started to change as Nancy took her artistic sport more seriously. "It became stressful. A lot of the stress I put on myself."

According to Brenda, some mornings Nancy would say she did not feel like getting out of bed. "I would tell her not to and then she would force herself up."

The changes started when Nancy was about 10-years-old. Up until the fifth grade she had lots of friends.

"Then I started skating more. I would leave school early and come in late," she noted.

That did not leave any time for participation in school basketball games or dances.

"Plus I didn't feel that I fit in," Nancy said. She remembers being embarrassed when the school announcements included her latest accomplishments. "I didn't want people thinking I was great."

Nancy did not go friendless as she comes from a large extended family. She also hung around with a group of six skaters who would have tent parties in her backyard or sleepovers at one of the other houses.

However, some things are changing. "Now I have learned that some people like to see me excited," Nancy said.

But, she would like people to accept her for herself and not think her last name is "the ice skater."

The crazy hours are still causing problems with Nancy's education. During her high school years Nancy had to have a tutor so that she could keep up with her classmates at Stoneham High School. This past year she has had to take a break in her studies at Emmanuel College in Boston, where she is a Sophomore with a business major.

After 15-years, Nancy is still skating six-hours-per-day which does not allow her to take a full course load.

The daily schedule is a far cry from the one-hour-per-week that Nancy skated when she first started in a U.S. Figure Skating Association group at the Stoneham Arena. This is the first year since then that she has not been able to participate in the local ice show.

"I didn't take lessons until I was about nine-years-old," Nancy said. However, since that time she has had a variety of teachers.

Her first teacher was Theresa Martin of Newton. That lasted for 10-years and then Nancy took from Denise Morrissey for a year. For the past five years she has been studying under Evy and Mary Scotvold.

"When I started with Evy and Mary they changed a lot of my techniques," Nancy said.

She notes that her latest coaches complimented Martin. "They told her that I never learned anything incorrect."

Both she and Brenda say that the road to Nancy's recent success has had a lot of disappointments. However, it has contained a lot of rewards also.

Her first big win was in 1983 when she took first place in the Intermediate Ladies Division Freestyle and Figures at the New England Competition.

Her last road leading to the Bronze started at the same New England Competition. From there she went on to be one of three winners in the Eastern Competition and the U.S. Nationals.

Because of her status this year she is automatically in the U.S. Nationals next year.

Dreams Page S-4

NANCY KERRIGAN HAS her eyes on the future and not on the Bronze Medal she recently received at the World Figure Skating Championships in Munich, Germany. That was the past for Kerrigan, who is thinking of what has to be done next year and at the 1992 Winter Olympics.

Every time I step foot on an airplane, I try to sit in a particular seat, usually the one next to a window that overlooks the wing. I have a quirk about sitting in any other seat, I have to constantly look out the window to make sure the engines are still connected to the plane, and they're working and not on fire. The only time I broke this routine was after I saw a movie, starring John Lithgow, about a guy who always had to sit Performances take place at Stoneham High, with reciprocity to other area concerts. This year's schedule includes harpist DeWayne Fulton, The American Boychoir, the Empire Brass, the Greater Boston Youth Symphony Chorus, and on May 1st, Hector Olivera in a bonus concert for new members.

Family memberships are $60; student memberships, $10. For more info, call (617)944-5262 or (617)438-7961.

NORTH READING - North Reading native and Wakefield resident Frederick Plouff, president of FLP Enterprises, Inc. in Andover, has patents pending in the United States and 30 other countries for a "revolutionary" one-use only syringe.

The syringe, Lokshot, locks shut after an injection so that it cannot be used again and therefore, will not aid the spread of viruses such as AIDS HIV or hepatitis B.

LYNNFIELD - Thanks to funds generated at the annual Geranium-fest and Craft Fair, Lynnfield's Townscape and DPW are accepting requests from residents interested in having shade trees planted on the streetside portions of their property.

This year's fair will be held on May 18th on the Common, and geraniums may be pre-ordered via forms available at the Lynnfield Library, Village Pharmacy, the DPW office at Town Hall, and Gates and Karen's Bakery.

WINCHESTER - Winchester's recent Yellow Ribbon Tribute at the K of C Hall raised more than $5,000 for needy service men and their dependents, thanks to the efforts of Winchester's Yellow Ribbon Committee and Veterans Service Administrator Domenic Serratore.

According to committee heads John Lane and Robert Keane, donations are still welcome - and still rolling in.

Living proof that some of the biggest steps made by medicine are the smallest ones.

In a medical emergency, there's no question where the Froilan family will turn for help. Though other hospitals are the same distance away, New England Memorial holds a special place in their hearts. When Mr. Froilan required an emergency appendectomy, when son Roger, Jr., required emergency stitches, New England Memorial provided swift, skilled care. So when the tip of 3-year-old Lisa's toe was severed as a door closed on it, they knew exactly where to go.

What they didn't know, however, was how much specialized care Lisa's injury would require—above and beyond the stitches so often viewed as standard emergency room fare. To save Lisa's toe, New England Memorial emergency room specialists promptly recognized the need for plastic surgery and were able to respond because of a unique on-call arrangement that provides 24-hour-a-day plastic surgery coverage.

Today, Lisa is an active little gymnast who is probably too young to remember what happened to her toe. But her family will never forget. Living proof that quality emergency care can make a very big difference in a little one's life.

For more information or a physicians directory, call us today at (617) 979-7117. For a physician referral, call (617) 979-7005.

SHE IS REALLY JUST TRYING TO RELAX...Nancy Kerrigan is surrounded by her skating memorabilia as the aftermath of a party of 200-family and friends. In real life the skates have to be shined and the medals are stored away.

Dreams Dedication, Desire

Nancy said that she would advise young skaters trying to emulate her to stick with it.

"If you have a dream you can fulfill it by working hard," she said. "Believing in yourself is probably the basic thing you have to do."

Nancy added "If someone has talent without desire and drive everybody onboard. I decided, on my next flight, to sit in a seat somewhere near the tail section.

I began noticing that a lot of us have funny superstitions. I went for a ride with a friend recently, and noticed he goes through a specific routine before driving away. First he checks the mirrors, then his seat belt, then he starts the engine, adjusts his radio, and finishes by setting the temperature. Oh, yes, he also has to check to make sure his hair is just right. After becoming aware of his habit, I chuckled and asked him why he has to follow the same routine every time. He replied that it puts him in the right frame of mind to drive; otherwise, he said, his mind will wander, and he's afraid of getting into an accident.

I've never given other forms of superstition much thought, either. That is, until recently. Every time I drive by a Catholic church, I bless myself for good luck. I grew up Catholic, and until now, never contemplated just how much of a superstition that routine is. I've always had a fear that if I missed blessing myself, some great opportunity would escape me.

My girlfriend also has her own little superstitions. For instance, every time we go out to eat, she insists on sitting at a particular side of a table, or if we sit at the bar, she has to sit to my right. Otherwise, she says, she won't be able to enjoy her meal as much. Personally, I think it's because she wants me to constantly be looking at what she refers to as "her best side."

My best friend told me that he is a slave to a superstition of his own: he has to follow a certain routine when he gets dressed each morning. "If I don't lay out my clothes beforehand in just the right way," he said, "I know my day is not going to get off on the right foot. I've won or lost big deals because of the way I get dressed in the morning." God forbid that his wife should forget to pick up his shirts at the dry cleaners!

While taking a walk the other morning, I thought of a childhood superstition that stuck until I was in high school. I refused to step on cracks in the sidewalk. Honestly, I don't even remember why this was so important to me at the time. I think it had something to do with breaking somebody's back each time I stepped on a crack. It all seems so silly now. Come to think of it, every superstition I've mentioned so far has been pretty silly.

None is sillier than the one brought to my attention by another friend - a female just yesterday. She loves to receive boxes of chocolates as gifts. When she opens them, she insists on eating a particular chocolate first - I think she said the one filled with a cherry. Otherwise, she said, she won't derive as much pleasure from eating the rest of the box. Frankly, I think it has more to do with the fear of getting fat, or getting a pimple on her cheek, than anything else. If she eats the cherry-filled chocolate first, somehow she'll be spared those horrible fates.

Gamblers probably have the most obsessive superstitions. Take another acquaintance of mine: he will not miss playing the same daily lottery number, fearing that, if he does, the number will come out. He doesn't give much thought to the number coming out when he does play it on a daily basis. This same guy has a penchant for betting on football games. Whenever he watches a game upon which he has money riding, he has to face the television in a certain way, with his hands' clenched together, frequently rubbing them, as if he were trying to generate heat, otherwise, he can't maintain a positive attitude about the game.

I know this other fellow who won't go on a job interview without wearing a certain pair of socks. "I got a terrific job once while wearing those socks," he said, adding, "so whenever I go for an interview I make sure I've got those same socks on. I save them just for that purpose. I swear, they bring me good luck." I just hope that he washes them inbetween interviews.

Getting back to Wade Boggs and his superstition about using a particular bat every time he steps up to the plate: judging by some of the bad luck he's had while off the playing field, perhaps he should consider carrying his lucky bat around with him all the time. If nothing else, it will prove to be a deterrent to irreverent female fans who might otherwise accost him notwithstanding his wife's presence next to him.

Supplement to Daily Times-Chronicle (Woburn, Reading, Winchester, Burlington, Wakefield, Lynnfield, Yborger, No. Reading Transcript, Wilmington & Tewksbury Town Crier, Stoneham Independent)

then someone without talent will beat them."

She noted that in 1985 she would practice in a sweatshirt that had the words "Dreams, Dedication, Desire" printed on it. "That's what you need to get someplace," Nancy said.

It also takes quite a bit of money and family support. An average young person doing local shows and competitions can expect to spend about $5,000 annually. For Nancy the figure is over 10-times that amount.

She notes that her father has had to work to jobs at times to help her out.

Other than financially, Nancy also receives a lot of emotional support from her family.

Her brother Mark will jovially rib her in a sibling rivalry fashion, but during the interview he made himself useful screening personnel and business telephone calls.

Brenda said "Any parent is proud of their children. It is not what she has done but that she has stuck with it.

"There have been a lot of disappointments and it's been a slow climb up the ladder," she added.

However, Brenda also said "Our life is really small time. We are average and the places she goes to remind me of storybook stuff."

Those places include world class hotels and resorts in cities such as Munich and Stuttgart in Germany. Also cities like Copenhagen, Helsinki, Paris, and Rome. The countries also include Switzerland, Japan, Hungary and Bulgaria.

For Nancy it is a wonderful life but she realizes that there are other things.

As to when it will end, she said "I never want to finish this until I'm done and I'm not done yet."

However, she notes that she does like children and that is in a future plan.

MH HOSTS WALKING DEMONSTRATION

SportsAid, Malden Hospital's center for sports medicine, will host a walking demonstration Tuesday, April 30 at 6:30 p.m. A rain date has been set for Thursday, May 2nd at 6:30 p.m. The demonstration will address proper warm-up and cool-down techniques, and establishing an individual's target heart rate and the correct way to walk in order to work toward one's target heart rate. In addition, SportsAid staff members will lead a walk from the hospital and proceed around Fellsmere Pond, a nearby reservoir.

The goal of a walking demonstration is to teach the proper techniques and benefits of a regular walking routine. The demonstration will illustrate how to achieve and maintain your target heart rate. "If you walk correctly you can achieve your level of aerobic capacity while putting less stress on our joints and lessening your chances of injury," according to Linda Moody, SportsAid Manager.

Many of those who have already registered for the walking demonstration attended SportsAid's lecture on "How and Why to Exercise." Those in attendance learned about the benefits of exercise, including how exercise can decrease a person's cholesterol, body fat, and blood pressure, and the differences between cardiovascular and strength training. Many of those in attendance expressed an interest in developing a walking club.

To register for the walking demonstration, please contact Linda Moody, SportsAid Manager, at (617) 322-2221, Ext. 5529.

—The Wakefield High Drama Club production "Once Upon a Mattress" premieres tonight, April 24th at Wakefield Junior High School auditorium and continues through the 27th, at 8:00 p.m. each evening. Tonight only, tickets are $4 for senior citizens and K-8 students. On the 25th through 27th, tickets are $7.50 for adults, $6 for students.

We hear the performances, directed by Ron Chibaro, are awesome, to put it mildly. For more information, call (617) 246-1749.

—"Eddie," the improvisational, true story of a Rhode Island teen trapped in the lethal web of substance abuse, will be at Reading High on Wednesday, May 1st at 7:30 p.m., thanks to the generosity of several local businesses and community members. Tickets are $1 each.

The play is recommended for middle schoolers, 12 and up, only if accompanied by a parent; and anyone else concerned about the pressures of today's society on the young, especially parents.

The thing about "Eddie" is ... that after each production, approximately 12 students refer themselves for alcohol and other drug counseling.

—Because of their outstanding work on "Global News," the following Winchester fourth graders - students of Mrs. Scharch - won second prize in a statewide Geonews contest sponsored by the Massachusetts Geographic Alliance: Michael Dacey, Mara Kelly, Tomas Zeman, David Nailling, and Jennifer Megaloudis.

The sixth issue of their paper featured the Middle East, including relevant maps, interviews, articles, and cartoons; and they have donated their $75 cash prize to their school library in the form of a geography book and to the world, by way of a contribution to a "needy" part of the world.

—Does this list look familiar? Although slight to major changes are always a possibility, the Woburn School Committee recently identified the following areas to be cut, resulting in job losses for 33 staff people.

Program and staff reductions could include: reducing elementary and secondary physical education; removing ninth grade health courses; eliminating the high school in-house suspension program; reducing high school librarians from two to one; reducing middle school keyboarding; charging all students for music lessons; eliminating high school home ec' and business ed' para-professionals; eliminating middle school computer courses and integrating them into math classes; reducing middle school teams; eliminating the Gateway (gifted and talented) program; reducing the SEEM liaison position; and revamping the high school lunch program.

"School Committee members were not unanimous," reports the Woburn edition of the Daily Times Chronicle, "in the number of cuts or the areas of cutting."

This show is the only one to represent all of the major secondary market institutions.

This is the first show since the Gulf War to offer thousands of properties including condo, singles, multi-families, vacation, land commercial and industrial.

"Mortal Thoughts" "Warlock"

by Rochelle Flynn

"Mortal Thoughts" Starring Demi Moore, Glenna Headly, Bruce Willis. Directed by Alan Rudolph. Written by William Reilly, Claude Kerven. Produced by John Fiedler, Mark Tarlov. Rated R.

Cynthia Kellogg and Joyce Urbanski, two working class women who have been friends for most of their lives, are the chief suspects in a murder. There's no question that there was a murder, Joyce's husband couldn't be any stiffer. The question is whether or not they are going to get away with it.

The story unfolds via flashback. Cynthia, played with earthy perfection by Demi Moore, is being questioned by the police. Director Alan Rudolph created a gray, dull environment in which Moore calmly tells her story before dissolving to the colorful, violent reality she is describing. It's a trick that works wonders, evoking an edgy atmosphere that continues to prick the skin right through to the film's end.

The problem, both before and after he dies, is Joyce's husband James, played with loutish elan by Bruce Willis. To put it mildly, James is a pig. He's brutal, selfish and spends most of his time terrifying his wife, portrayed by Glenna Headly. It's actually a relief when James is finally put in his place.

CYNTHIA KELLOGG (DEMI MOORE) must balance her instinct for survival against a lifelong friendship during a murder investigation in "Mortal Thoughts," a Columbia Pictures release.

The police think someone owes society a debt for offing James, only Detective Woods (Harvey Keitel) doesn't know which woman is really to blame.

Neither do we, which is why the movie manages to be both chilling and entertaining. This has a lot to do with Rudolph's stylish direction and strong performances from everyone in the cast, especially Moore, who proves that "Ghost" wasn't a fluke.

There are a few problems, however. One can't help but wonder why Joyce stayed with James for so long. True, she may not be the brightest person on the face of the earth, but she is clearly unhappy and would certainly like to be rid of him. Another weak point is the ending. This is a harsh film filled with tough characters and a bloody corpse. Yet the film's coda is decidedly soft-boiled and lacks the imagination that makes the rest of the film such superior entertainment.

"Warlock" Starring Julian Sands, Richard E. Grant, Lori Singer. Directed and produced by Steve Miner. Written by D.T. Twohy. Rated R.

When a 300-year-old warlock zaps across time and space to arrive in present-day Los Angeles, nobody even notices his odd clothes and mannerisms. Ditto for the witch-hunter hot on his heels. Everyone just assumes they are part of the local scene. After all, you could find stranger things on Melrose Avenue.

It's that kind of camp attitude that makes it worth the price of a ticket to sit through "Warlock," a low-budget howler with lots of black humor and cheesy special effects. Actually, the plot's not half bad, but falls apart before the film's conclusion.

Julian Sands plays the warlock who escapes execution in Salem via a cyclone that deposits him in L.A. Turns out satan wants him to find the Grand Grimoire, a top-of-the-line witches' handbook that will uncreate all of creation. But Richard E. Grant, who also cyclones in from Salem, has other plans. He enlists the help of a ditzy waitress, played by Lori Singer, who has found herself zapped by the warlock with a spell that could have her dead of old age in about three days.

Grant and Singer are soon on a cross-country trek after Sands, who has left a trail of disgusting mutilation in his wake. The violence, though intense, has a streak of black humor in it that would make this flick attractive to a cult audience. There is also some inadvertent funny business, such as when Sands makes himself a flying potion and starts zipping around the country. The thing is, Sands often flies while standing up, so he looks like he's actually quite still and the backdrop is moving behind him.

"Warlock" is actually rather entertaining for a schlocky flick, it's both funny and fun and has slightly higher production values than most in its genre. It was also partially filmed in and around Boston, which is an added treat for local audiences.

May is Preservation Month

Governor William F. Weld and Secretary of State Michael J. Connolly joined with state preservationists recently to sign a proclamation declaring May as "Preservation Month." Preservation month is a time for all the cities and towns of the Commonwealth to plan events in celebration of the state's historic resources and preservation accomplishments.

The year 1991 is significant in historic preservation history, marking the 25th anniversary of the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966; the 75th anniversary of the establishment of the National Park Service; the 10th anniversary of the Conference on New England Archaeology; the 100th anniversary of the Trustees of Reservations; the 200th anniversary of the Massachusetts Historical Society; the 20th anniversary of the Office of the State Archaeologist; and the 10th anniversary of the Massachusetts Association for Olmsted Parks.

"Preservation Month is a time to join with colleagues and local commissions throughout the state to celebrate the successes and goals of historic preservation. I personally extend my congratulations and appreciation to all preservationists for their continued dedication," said Secretary Connolly. Governor Weld gave his congratulations and commendation to preservationists for their work.

One statewide event planned for this May is the Twelfth Annual Preservation Awards Ceremony. Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

When Judge Daley, of a Boston Municipal Court, died a hot shot lawyer made a bee line to the then Governor Curley's office. He said to James Michael Curley, "Judge Daley dropped dead this morning. How's the chance of taking his place?" Governor Curley smiled and replied, "I'll call John Connolly, the undertaker, and see if he can arrange it."

When I was a young man I used to 'lean' toward blondes but they kept pushing me away. Then I fell in love with Maureen O'Hara of the movies, so redheads were my weakness. That's what Kathy was and her temper matches what used to be the color of her hair. When I first met Kathy she has the shape of a fiddle but now she had the shape of a cello. Esther Williams, a great swimmer and movie star, is now a bathing suit designer. Her bathing suits are sensibly stylish. She said, "Some modern suits are no more than two dixie cups and a bandage." Kathy was looking over a swim suit display and asked me, "Chips, shall I get a two piece bathing suit or an all-in-one suit?" I looked at her and said, "Who the heck are you kidding? You can't get into an all-in-one suit!"

General Omar Bradley said, "The Congressional Medal of Honor was never given for what one 'said' on the battlefield." On his annual physical Richie Mamel of Winchester was asked, "Did this injury happen when you were on the football team?" "No Doctor, it happened when the football team was on me!"

Woodchips Personality Winners:

Also, Theresa Michaud, Alan Smith, Nancy Styles, Valerie Downs, Millie Ann Cavanaugh, Pat and Dick Wood, Fred and Ann Antinarelli, Joanne DeLuca, Denise McLaughlin, Kristin Palm, Kelli Pazyra and Christine Smith,

all of Wilmington; Kirt and Keith Ronan, Vickie Ellsworth, Ashley Downs, Richard Pozzi Jr., Don Purtell, Mary Ann Taylor, Jay Gaffney, Bob Pierent, Will and Phyllis Cannon and Ed and Ann Heinecki, all of Tewksbury; Woodchips welcomes Michael O'Toole to the Stoneham Police Force, Town Administrator Teddy Ryan, Safety Officer Al Duff, Coach Wayne Fillback, Jason Rogers, Captain Chris Busby, Eric Delvecchio, Jim Scally, Kevin Pirani, Matt Grafton and Al Kopek, all of Stoneham. Note: I am sorry Lynnfield, I have exhausted all the Personality Winners I know. I am positive that there are many, many, many more - please write and tell me who you are.

A playground equipment company hired George Gould. He starts working next week on the "swing shift." I bought a Dogwood tree at Pinewood Gardens and planted it on my lawn. Kathy said, "I hope its 'bark' doesn't bother the neighbors." She then laughs as she added, "The 'sap' will feel right at home with you!" You have heard this before I'm sure - "Man works from sun to sun BUT women's work is never done." That used to be the case in my house when I was growing up. My dear mother, Kathleen, had to take care of seven children, with endless clothes washing, then put them on a dryer (a clothes line almost a mile long), then ironing, cooking and perpetual housework. When I tell that to Kathy she snaps, "Don't bother me with ancient history. I'm watching a soap opera on tv."

Father John Crispo said to Bob Giguere, "I'm happy to see you attending church again. Was it my sermons that inspired you?" "To be truthful, Father," Bob replied, "not your sermons but my wife Regina's." Louise Powers asked her son Ryan, "What was your Sunday School lesson about?" "It was all about a guy named Solomon." "And what did you learn about Solomon?" "Well, Carole Rindone, the teacher, said that he had 300 wives and 700 'cucumber vines.'" When Joe Altavesta was going to school the teachers said, "Joseph, name one important thing that we have today that we didn't have 50 years ago." "That's easy teacher. ME!"

Folks, although it's always a battle when I visit my sister Maureen, I do admit she has a smart way of disciplining her five-year-old son Mark. He had a nasty habit of picking up things like boxes of cookies, candy and small pies off the shelves at Ceretani's. What Maureen does now is remove Mark's belt just as he enters the supermarket. From then on he's so busy holding his trousers up he doesn't touch a thing. It is a well-known medical fact that "humor" heals the spirit and also heals the body. The only other thing that comes almost as close is eating garlic. When Larry Flynn was asked the reason for his apparent buoyant good health he said, "I eat three cloves of garlic a day. That's my secret. Standing ten feet away from Larry, Dicky Powers shouted, "What the heck makes you think it's a secret?"

Dean Martin said, "If it weren't for the olives in the martinis, I'd starve to death." Folks, they can holler all they want about "Women's Liberation" - at my house I have the last words, "Yes, Dear." Too many modern day women get married "before" they can really support a husband. Super Star of the week is Peter Curran of Woburn.

Community Concert series

Twelve reasons to join concert group

One small membership card entitles its owner to all four concerts sponsored by the Stoneham Community Concert Association - for the price of just one concert in Boston, and with no parking fees.

Next season, each adult member may now bring any student (to age 18) without charge to any of the concerts.

In 1991-92 the concerts will begin early at 7:30 p.m. Members and students can plan to be home early from the Stoneham High School at 149 Franklin Street, a very short distance from Stoneham Square.

The dates and times for the four concerts are now confirmed:

1. DeWayne Fulton, master harpist, Sunday, October 20 at 3 p.m.
2. The American Boychoir, from Boychoir School in Princeton, New Jersey on Tuesday, November 19, 7:30 p.m.
3. The Empire Brass on Tuesday, February 18, 1992 at 7:30 p.m.

4. The Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestra, Saturday, May 2, 1992 at 7:30 p.m.

All the artists come to the Association through Columbia Artists, New York and are thoroughly screened by them. Programs of Community Concerts over the 42 years have been fully enjoyed by our growing number of members who renew every year.

All new members who have joined this week and right up to the 8:15 concert time at the Stoneham High School may enjoy this bonus concert: Hector Olivera, organist, an international artist, performing on his own personally crafted and assembled organ, the O-1, the only one like it in the world!

For further information and memberships all are invited to visit Membership Week Headquarters in the Stoneham Public Library through April 27 from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m., or call (617) 438-07961 or (617) 438-0835.

The North Reading Theatre Workshop rehearses "Mame"

The North Reading Theatre Workshop, Inc. is currently in rehearsal for their spring musical production of "Mame." Excitement is running high, as this will be their first show on the stage of the Collins Center in Andover. The cast is a mixture of longtime Theatre Workshop members, as well as many "first timers."

In the title role of Mame Dennis is Julie A. Wood of North Reading. Ms. Wood has appeared in countless NRTW productions, most recently as Mama Rose in "Gypsy." Susan Sullivan of Burlington is playing Mame's "bosom buddy," Vera. Ms. Sullivan has been featured in several NRTW shows, including "A Chorus Line" and "Hello Dolly." Maureen Woodell of North Reading is reprising her role of Agnes Gooch from NRTW's first production of "Mame" in 1979. Young Patrick, Mame's nephew, is played by Joseph W. Lavoie, Jr. of Andover. Dave Ham of Hyde Park is the "grown up" Patrick.

The rest of the "characters" that fill out the colorful story of Mame Dennis Burnside's life (based on the true story by her nephew Patrick) are Don Aubrey of Methuen as Beauregard Burnside; Karl Schumaker of North Reading as Ito, Mame's houseboy; John Macero of Saugus as Lindsay Woolsey; John Greene of North Reading as Mr. Babcock; Denis Webster of Methuen as Junior Babcock; Evelyn Chick of Revere as Mme. THE UPBEAT BOYS

It appears that 1991 is going to be the year for the rest of America to discover what Boston audiences know to be true...The Upbeat Boys are ready to take the country by storm and the time is "Now."

This top group produced as the creation of the New Boston Network is about to come into its own. Their sound is electric and their name describes best what they are all about onstage - "Up Beat."

It's an incredible success story which is written against all odds. After all, the "New Kids," another Boston discovery, have monopolized the headlines month after month. At times it must have felt like "The Upbeat Boys" would never have a chance on their own.

Not so, last season these young men were asked to open for name attractions like Sweet Sensation, Seduction and Salt & Pepper.

The shows were tight and the band jumped right into the spotlight taking charge from the start. Local audiences cheered them on toward the end of the year, they had received invites from performers like Cher and the ever popular blonde bombshell Madonna herself.

From then until now, "The Upbeat Boys" took over headlining their own shows, touring across New England and packing them in at every stop along the way. Ed McMahon of Kiss 108 terms them "the next five biggest superstars from Boston."

THE UPBEAT BOYS consist of five young men, George, Joey, Mike, John and Marc and they grew up right in the neighborhoods around the City of Boston. They will be in Reading May 11 to perform at Reading High.

Pinkham of Lynn as Gregor; Alice Sadlow of North Reading as Mother Burnside.

Also, Maureen Carreiro of Wilmington as Sally Cato; Kerri Thomas of Weymouth as Cousin Fan; Margaret Lucchesi of Everett as Cousin Belle; Eileen M. Pacy of Stoneham as Gloria Upson; Dr. Paul Dollard of Andover as Mr. Upson; Barbara Pollock of Tewksbury as Mrs. Upson; M. Elizabeth Rodgers of Wakefield as Pegeen Ryan; and Jason Rodgers as little Peter Dennis. In addition to this talented cast are more than 20 singers and dancers, to make "Mame" one of the largest productions staged by the Theatre Workshop.

Production date for "Mame" are June 28 and 29, at the Collins Center in Andover. Please call (508) 664-5995 for Group Rates and other ticket information.

About the Towns

From S-3

WILMINGTON - "Whistles will blow; T has no dough" reads the headline in a recent Wilmington "Town Crier." Seems that a move to eliminate blaring train whistles at night and install gates at some Wilmington railroad crossings has come to a whistle-stop, temporary though it might be.

The MBTA Director of Railroad Operations has informed the Wilmington town manager that at this time, no capital or bond issue funds are available to install gates in Wilmington.
